Some Do Not Purr by the Fire

This finally gets around to an essay about how the Teamster racket was broken wide open. It was not the McClellan committee which did it. Though it has, of course, done a great job and saved the day. But first, as they say, a commercial.

Now and then when newspapermen and women are low in spirit, it seems to them their craft is but editing the thoughts of other men or writing ephemeral paragraphs which tomorrow are used to start fires or wrap fish.

There are too many newspapers which are like fat cats, purring contentedly by the warm hearth of economic success. Some are large fat cats, and some small fat cats. But they all have one thing in common. They are contented. Their editorials are "constructive" and they do not think, they say, that controversy belongs in a newspaper. It is so much better to purr by the warm fire.

It is these papers which, perhaps not too strangely, are the most strident in their defense of freedom of the press. That it is a freedom they never use seems never to occur to them.

Service

There are other newspapers which do not fear controversy. When they believe an issue is at stake, they do not hesitate to choose up sides and fight for, or against, political candidates or pressure groups. They do not, as the saying is, "go to bed" with any set of politicians or causes. They are cognizant of the duty of a newspaper to serve its time and its community. They are patient and long-suffering. They do not move from one "crusade" to another. But they never purr.

Their motto is, though they never so define it, to comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable.

These are the newspapers which the entrenched politicians attack as "those lying newspapers."

These are the newspapers which make enemies—and friends.

These are the newspapers which do not want to be loved—but hope to be respected.

All of which is preamble enough to a tribute to the Portland Oregonian. It was the Oregonian which almost a year ago—last April, to be exact—first began to print its documented expose of the corruption within the Teamsters union.

Danger

It was a dangerous thing to do. The mayor of the city was involved. He was a popular man. He was the subject of some recordings taken by a gambler who had been double-crossed by some Teamster racketeers. Unless the newspaper could get those recordings made a part of the official record, its case would be weaker.

Portland is a conservative and attractive city. It was shocked by the reports. It did not want to believe the stories of vice and gambling. But the Oregonian kept on.

It was not a "crusade," such as some newspapers fabricate for sensation or circulation. As a matter of fact, the newspaper which does a real community job rarely benefits in circulation. The families of those exposed and their friends always become angry and think a newspaper should not publish all the facts. (The fat cats always most piously rationalize themselves out of so doing.)

All the weight of the Teamsters was thrown against the Oregonian. The paper had a hard row to hoe. But it hoed it.

When the fight shifted to Seattle, the Times of that grand and beautiful, if not conservative city, took it up. The battle was a brass-knucks one—as it had been at Portland.

It was almost a year before the Senate investigating committee became interested. The committee now has played the recordings. Portland has seen its mayor take refuge time after time in the Fifth Amendment.

The decent men in the Teamsters union now have a chance to reform their union and join the rest of American labor in coming of age.

But let us not forget it was a newspaper—damned by the entrenched powers as a lying newspaper—which did the job. And the hearts of all of us are thereby lifted up.

HEATER BLOWS UP, SETS OFF GIANT BLAZE—Fierce flames, ignited by an exploding fuel heater, swept through portions of an Atlanta tractor-trailer repair firm in a series of explosions which caused an estimated $100,000 damage. The fire occurred shortly after noon Tuesday at Trailmobile, Inc., 780 Lake Ave. NE, destroying a wooden repair shop and a number of repair tools. No one was injured. Second Assistant Fire Chief C. T. Ragsdale said the fire originated in the firm's paint shop where several cans of paint, paint thinner and other inflammables were stored. Firemen were able to keep the fire from the main building. Workmen were eating lunch in another part of the building when the heater exploded.

Beck Won't Yield Records, Invokes Fifth Amendment

Teamsters' Boss Silent On $322,448

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 26 — Dave Beck refused to tell a Senate committee today about his financial relations with the union he heads.

The president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters repeatedly invoked the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution as the committee pressed him to say whether he took $322,448.80 from the union treasury for his own use.

"I refuse to give testimony against myself," he declared again and again. He had been advised, he said, "of proposed criminal actions against me" for alleged income tax evasions.

BURDEN OF THE CASE

In standing on the Fifth Amendment and refusing to talk, Beck was protecting himself both against such criminal actions and against possible prosecution for contempt of the Senate. If he had refused to answer questions without invoking his constitutional rights he would have exposed himself to contempt charges.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the select committee on improper activities in the labor or management field, stated the burden of the case against Beck at the outset.

Evidence had been developed, he said, "that clearly indicates that from the years 1949 through the first three months of 1953, Mr. Beck took more than $320,000 from the Teamsters Union treasury in Seattle."

FREQUENTLY SHOUTED

Beck was asked again and again about the total and a breakdown of it, but each time he fell back on his constitutional rights. His answers were frequently long and shouted.

The Fifth Amendtment protects a citizen in many areas, such as deprivation of life, liberty or property without due process of law, the seizure of private property without just compensation, and double jeopardy for the same offense, but Beck relied specifically on the provision that no person "shall be compelled in any

Board Votes $90,000 for TechFaculty

The Georgia Tech Foundation voted Tuesday to make available $90,000 to supplement faculty salaries at Georgia Tech and another $60,000 for "contingencies" at the school during 1957-58.

Ivan Allen Jr., president of the Foundation, said the grants totaling $150,000 constitute a "major step in the direction of providing adequate salaries" at Georgia Tech.

Dr. Paul Weber, acting president of Tech, hailed the grants as "the most significant development affecting the operation of Georgia Tech in many year."

"This is a red-letter day in the history of Georgia Tech," Dr. Weber declared.

FIRST IN HISTORY

The funds came from contributions by 7,000 alumni and 250 corporations. The allocations are the first major supplementations of faculty salaries in the history of Georgia Tech.

The $90,000 allocation will be used to raise salaries of about 100 key faculty members at Tech. The $60,000 for "other contingencies" also may be used for faculty salary increases.

Dr. Weber said the allocations will be "over and above" salary increases made possible by the State Board of Regents. He said Tech has about 300 full-time faculty members.

About 15 per cent of the funds will be used to add new faculty members.

"NO POOR RELATIONS"

"All of the grants are subject to approval by the Board of Regents and will go to the teaching faculty," Dr. Weber noted. "These grants will enable Tech to keep many of its faculty members who otherwise might be lost to other colleges or to industry

$17.5 Million Aid Going to Tunisia

TUNIS, Tunisia, March 26 (AP)—The United States today promised Tunisia 17½ million dollars in economic aid.

Agreements signed by the two countries provide for the money to be made available before the end of the current U.S. fiscal year in June. It includes 6½ million dollars for purchase of U.S. surplus wheat to tide Tunisia over its current drought.

Twining Gets Top Post As Ike Shifts Military

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—President Eisenhower today ordered the biggest reshuffle of top military leaders since the year he took office. Named to head the Joint Chiefs of Staff was Air Force Gen. Nathan F. Twining.

Twining, a member of the Joint Chiefs since 1953, will succeed Adm. Arthur W. Radford as chairman on Aug. 15. Radford will step down after serving two two-year terms—the longest tenure which the law allows.

Eisenhower also nominated — subject to Senate confirmation—a new Air Force chief of staff, a new deputy secretary of defense and a new secretary of the Air Force.

QUARLES IN DEFENSE POST

These changes were the most sweeping in the Pentagon since Eisenhower replaced in 1953 the Joint Chiefs appointed by former President Truman.

Donald A. Quarles, now secretary of the Air Force, was named to be deputy secretary of defense, the No. 2 position in the defense establishment now held by Reuben Robertson.

The resignation of Robertson, who came to the Pentagon in August 1955 with the understanding he would remain not more than two years, also was announced by the White House. Robertson asked that it become effective April 25.

To succeed Twining as commander of the Air Force, Eisenhower nominated Gen. Thomas D. White, now the vice chief of the USAF.

DOUGLAS TO AF JOB

James H. Douglas, undersecretary of the Air Force, was chosen to fill the secretaryship being vacated by Quarles.

Adm. Arleigh Burke was at the time nominated for a second two-year term as chief of naval operations.

The White House said Gen. Maxwell Taylor will continue in his term as Army chief of staff until June 29, 1959. The Pentagon said that, unlike the other chiefs who get two-year terms, the Army commander serves "during the pleasure of the President but not for more than four years."

TWINING EXPECTED

The selection of Twining had been expected. Since the establishment of the strategy-making Joint Chiefs organization in 1948, the chairmanship has been held by one Army officer—Gen. Omar Bradley—and one naval officer—Radford.

Secretary of Defense Wilson, answering a recent news conference question, said there was a "general understanding" that the Jury in Cobb Told To Probe Club Gaming

Special to The Constitution

MARIETTA, March 26 — Cobb County superior court judge James T. Manning Tuesday ordered the Cobb grand jury into session Wednesday to study reports of organized gambling in private clubs after the jury shrugged off an earlier charge to look into gambling.

This is the February grand jury, held over to supervise an audit of county books after an employe in the county commissioner's office was indicted on a forgery charge. The charge grew out of the operation of the office last year.

Jurors were scheduled to meet at 10 a.m. to receive the final report on the audit. However, Judge Manning called them an hour early, pointed out five slot machines had been seized in a raid on a private club near Marietta Saturday, and charged the jury to look into the matter of organized gambling in private clubs.

Foreman Bass Field pointed out the present jury would have to retire five days before the new jury comes in on April 8, and asked if the present jury would have sufficient time in which to make the investigation.

Judge Manning replied the jury had the right to subpoena the officers and records of any club.

At 2 p.m., the jury returned general presentments in which it called attention to the short time remaining and recommended that county officers make an investi-

U.N. Chief Wins Suez Concessions

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

CAIRO, March 26—Dag Hammarskjold was reported today to have gained some concessions from President Nasser on proposed plans for the operation of the Suez Canal.

The U.N. secretary general concluded his so-called exploratory talks with the Egyptians today in a two-hour conference with Foreign Minister Fawzi. A spokesman for Hammarskjold said the talks had "proved useful."

SOME CONCESSIONS

Well-placed informants said Nasser, while remaining firm in his stand that Egypt was to have full authority over the Suez Canal, had accepted some of Hammarskjold's demands for a conciliatory approach to the operation of the waterway. Among the more hopeful it was believed these concessions might prove acceptable to the major users of the canal.

Hammarskjold also was said to have gotten some kind of firm understanding with Nasser on the present interim role of the U.N. Emergency Forces in the Gaza Strip. The final deployment of the international police force cannot be determined until the Israelis have been consulted.

Hammarskjold abandoned the original plan he had made when he started his latest mission to the Middle East to visit Israel after his talks with the Nasser regime. The Israelis withheld any invitation to the U.N. chief and apparently remained silent on their position regarding Egypt's demand that the U.N. forces patrol both sides of the armistice lines.

LEAVE FOR BEIRUT

Hammarskjold is scheduled to leave for Beirut tomorrow morning to catch an airliner for New York.

There has been no indication that Hammarskjold received any kind of commitment from the Egyptians on the question of free international shipping through the Aqaba Gulf or how long the UNEF would be permitted to protect its approaches from Egyptian control.

When Hammarskjold arrives in Beirut tomorrow he hopes to be able to have a talk with John J. McCloy, New York banker, who is coming to Egypt at the secretary general's request to study financial problems revolving around the U.N. task of clearing the Suez Canal.

A spokesman said McCloy's trip would be more in the manner of a survey and study of current administrative questions rather than an attempt to reach any conclusion on how the cost of clearing the canal for major shipping would be paid. That problem is up to the U.N. General Assembly.

Bar NATO, Reds Caution Norway

OSLO, Norway, March 26 (AP)—Soviet Russia has sternly warned Norway against allowing NATO to set up atomic bases on Norwegian soil. Russia spoke darkly of fearful blows in case of war.

The Norwegian Foreign Office released tonight without comment a 2,500-word letter from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin to Foreign Minister Einar Gerhardsen last Thursday.

Bulganin declared the Soviet Union, while wanting peace, will take "the most energetic measures in order to inflict a destructive blow against aggressors and also against the bases which are located near our borders."

Griffin Favors Raises, But Postpones Verdict

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Gov. Griffin said Tuesday that he was in favor of $1,000,000 in raises for state employes. But he postponed definite action until July.

The raises, affecting more than three quarters of the state's 14,000 non-teaching employes, were recommended by E. L. Swain, State Merit System director.

"I am acutely aware of pressing needs in many cases," Griffin declared.

"In almost every business enterprise in Georgia, there has been a steady and constant increase in the salaries paid the workers. Employes under the Merit System have not received any substantial increase in pay for five or more years," he continued.

REQUESTS CUT

Griffin said it will take further study of the 1957-58 budget to determine whether the $1,000,000 will be available.

"Certainly if such funds are forthcoming, I favor putting this proposed adjustment into effect as promptly as possible," Griffin stated.

Swain made the proposals after hearing requests from all department heads.

The raises asked by the directors were scaled down about 40 per cent, Swain said.

As of June 30, 1956, there were 13,798 state employes exclusive of those in the university system. Their total salaries were $50.6 million a year. The raises being asked thus constitute about two per cent of the total.

CITES TURNOVER

In a prepared statement, Griffin said it was becoming increasingly difficult to obtain and keep qualified state employes.

"We find that some increases must be made if we are to retain in the service of the state capable employes who are making good on the jobs, as well as to attract new employes who are badly needed in some departments.

"This applies especially to technically, scientifically and professionally trained personnel," Griffin said.

Cold Night Seen With a Warmup Again Thursday

Atlantans will find Wednesday fair and slightly warmer, though temperatures are expected to drop sharply after dark, the Weather Bureau said.

Thursday, however, will be warm again with partly cloudy skies.

The extremes of temperature Wednesday will be 38-60, and Thursday's extremes are predicted at 42-64. Extremes in Atlanta Tuesday were 42-52.

Hospital's Moving Day Was Short and Sweet

Piedmont Hospital's moving operation went off successfully and a little ahead of schedule here Tuesday.

Sixty-four patients were transferred by ambulance from the old quarters, 551 Capitol Ave., SW, to the new building at 1968 Peachtree Rd., NW, in exactly three hours and 35 minutes.

George Burt, superintendent of the hospital, said officials had expected to move the last patient by mid-afternoon—but the transfer was completed at 12:50 p.m.

"Everything went off about as planned," Burt said.

The first baby born in the new hospital was a girl who arrived at 2:30 p.m. The mother was from Florence Crittenton Home. An official pointed out that Piedmont Hospital provides facilities for about 100 maternity cases from the Crittenton Home each year.

The last baby born in the old hospital was a boy who arrived at 12:50 a.m. Tuesday. The child is the son of Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Enslen Jr.

Fourteen of the patients moved into the new hospital were babies.

James V. Carmichael, president of Scripto, Inc., was the first patient to arrive at the new building.

The new Piedmont building, including the grounds, cost about $5,000,000. It contains six floors, but only five with 213 beds will be opened now. The sixth floor will be used to house nurses until a new school and home for nurses is built.

Gasoline Truck Wreck Spills 3,000 Gallons

By KEELER McCARTNEY

A gasoline tank truck overturned Tuesday afternoon on the Buford Highway near Clairmont road, dumping out 3,000 gallons of gasoline. The gasoline posed an explosion threat to nearby homes, a shopping center and rush-hour traffic, DeKalb County police said.

Fire companies from Chamblee and Brookhaven doused the spilled gasoline with water and chemicals.

The wreck occurred at 5 p.m.—the height of the afternoon rush traffic hour—and the wreckage was not cleared away until five hours later. The truck driver, Felix Kite, 40, of Phenix City, Ala., was not injured.

Lt. T. H. Gaines said he was told that a car immediately ahead of the truck stopped suddenly, presumably to pick up a hitch-hiker. Gaines said Kite, unable to stop in time to avoid striking the car, swerved over an embankment and the truck overturned.

Gaines said the auto which halted left before police arrived.

Kite had loaded the truck with 6,000 gallons of gasoline at Doraville a few moments before the crash, Gaines related. He said approximately half the gasoline was spilled out into the roadside ditch.

Immediately after the truck

TRUCK MAKES IT ON U.S. 50 NEAR DODGE CITY
Follows Tracks of Snow Plow Through Mountainous Snow Drifts

Blizzard Exhausts Fury; 40 Dead, Many Marooned

By United Press

A massive blizzard spent its fury in the West Tuesday and transportation began to move again in the snow-shrouded Great Plains.

The death count of the four-day, 13-state storm crept upward as rescue crews fought their way to hundreds of marooned cars and into snowbound hamlets.

A United Press count since late Friday showed at least 40 storm deaths—nine in Illinois, eight in Texas, seven in both Kansas, and Oklahoma, three in both Nebraska and Indiana, two in Missouri, and one each in New Mexico, Iowa and Ohio.

At Montezuma, Kan., two little girls were killed and five persons were injured when their home exploded Tuesday. The house's gas had gone off during the blizzard and the home blew up when their father lit a candle to check the basement hot water heater.

MORE DEATHS FEARED

The body of a frozen man was found under a house near Amarillo, Tex. Similar discoveries were feared in snow-buried cars and isolated homes.

The big storm lost much of its punch as it drove out of the Midwest early Tuesday.

Rain, snow, sleet or freezing drizzle slicked roads from the Mississippi Valley to Kentucky and Tennessee, Western Pennsylvania and Southern New York State.

Snow plows and helicopters continued a marathon rescue operation through the Great Plains prairies, where drifts piled up as deep as 30 feet.

Plows fought their way to the Union Pacific line's City of St. Louis, marooned on the tracks near Winona, Kan. It moved on to Oakley, Kan., for servicing and was to return to Winona to pick up 213 passengers who were taken off the train late Monday.

Hundreds more rail passengers waited in small towns and whistle stop railroad stations for trains to break through the snow and pick them up.

THOUSANDS STRANDED

Thousands of stranded motorists were able to drive out of the storm belt on open roads, but uncounted numbers were still stranded.

Three helicopters skimmed low over the Texas and Oklahoma panhandle snow drifts spotting motorists caught in the snows. A pilot reported "there is lots of work to do and we have rescued several people."

Texas officials said most major highways were open late Tuesday, but it may take two more days to clear drift - clogged secondary roads. Southwest Iowa communities off the main highways were still cut off from the outside world, trapped behind drifted roads.

Reds Reject Telling U.N. Of A-Tests

MOSCOW, March 26 (UP)—Russia today rejected an Anglo-American proposal to register all nuclear tests beforehand with the United Nations on grounds it did not solve the problem.

A formal statement by Soviet press chief L. F. Ilyichev proposed instead a temporary agreement to ban such tests pending a permanent pact.

SAME RED THEME

The statement did not reply to the offer by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at their Bermuda Conference to permit Russian observers at Western tests provided westerners were permitted to witness Soviet tests.

Ilyichev's statement hammered on the Soviet argument that the only solution to the question was to ban atomic and hydrogen bomb tests completely, but that Russia would not take such a step without mutual agreement by the United States and Britain.

AVOIDS DIRECT ANSWERS

In questioning by newsmen, he avoided answering directly whether the Soviet Union was prepared to accept Western witnesses at its nuclear tests in exchange for the right to send its own witnesses to Western tests.

But he said that registration of the tests with the U. N. and having them witnessed by observers would not alter the fact that the tests were being held.

Dulles Moves To Halt Egypt's Ouster of U.N.

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—Secretary of States Dulles moved today to keep Egypt from arbitrarily kicking out U. N. peace troops and to avoid a shooting showdown in the Gulf of Aqaba.

Dulles told his news conference:

1. Egypt has no right at this time to order withdrawal of the U.N. Emergency Force.

WORLD COURT OPINION

2. The United States will ask the United Nations to seek an advisory opinion from the World Court on whether the Straits of Tiran, which form the narrow mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba, embrace international waters.

Dulles made his statements during a 45-minute questioning, in which he also said he is cautiously optimistic about U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's Cairo talks.

Dulles said he has no interim report from Hammarskjold on the talks with Egypt's President Nasser. But he said Hammarskjold soon will be reporting to the U.N. on efforts to plan the future of the Suez Canal.

ON BOTH SIDES OF LINE

Dulles told reporters the United States believes that Egypt possesses no belligerent rights under the 1949 Palestine truce.

He said the United States also believes that, under the Feb. 2 U.N. resolutions, the U.N. troops should be stationed on both Egyptian and Israeli sides of the truce line.

Dulles emphasized that, in the U.S. view, the U.N. troops still have a mission to accomplish. You can make a good argument, he said, that they cannot be ordered withdrawn by Egypt until that mission is accomplished.

And he said the mission is to assure no hostilities will break out.

POLICY UNCHANGED

In the Gulf of Aqaba, where Egypt blocked Israeli shipping before the fighting last fall, Dulles said U. S. policy remains unchanged. He said the United States still maintains the right to free and innocent passage through the Straits of Tiran and into the gulf.

But he added a new element. He said U.S. plans are afoot to get the U.N. to ask the World Court for an advisory opinion. This opinion would say whether the straits are international, as Dulles argues, or Arab waters, as Nasser and King Saud of Saudi Arabia contend.

4 Go in Shakeup Of Red Rulers in Stalin's Georgia

LONDON, March 26 (UP)—Communist leaders in Josef Stalin's home Republic of Georgia today fired four cabinet ministers in a shakeup designed to step up economic production.

The announcement indicated an effort to beef up the economy of Georgia which has reacted bitterly to the Kremlin's de-Stalinization campaign.

Drive To Trim President's Budget Inspires Both Parties To Talk of Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, March 26 (UP)—Congressional moves to whittle President Eisenhower's record peacetime budget inspired talks today of a possible income tax cut—perhaps as soon as Jan. 1.

Democrats were said to be considering a political "coup" that would put them ahead of the Republicans in proposing tax cuts for 1958—a congressional election year.

But no sooner did this report gain currency than House Republicans met in conference and pledged to reduce taxes "as soon as practicable."

Lawmakers of both parties, already trying to achieve hefty cuts in Eisenhower's $71,800,000,000 spending program, were counting on economy efforts to swell the budget surplus and make lower taxes possible.

But the big question was how soon tax relief might be granted. The answer hinges in large part on what Congress does with Eisenhower's budget for the 1958 bookkeeping year that begins July 1.

Beck Is Revealed In His True Light

Dave Beck, fat physically, but lean in ethics and morality, yesterday took refuge in the Fifth Amendment.

The Fifth Amendment is one of the most vital sections of our Constitution. Our Founding Fathers wrote it in because they were used to the methods of tyrants who could force men to testify against themselves. And often such men had been tortured or bribed or coerced in evil and inhumane ways.

No thoughtful American would wish to eliminate the Fifth Amendment. This is particularly true because it is so honest and necessary an amendment it is starkly revealing of those who misuse it.

A dozen men, for example, may invoke it and refuse to testify "for fear of incriminating myself."

But there is never much doubt about why any person invokes it.

One does not come to the Fifth Amendment abruptly. The approach is gradual. But finally one must answer the question, "Were you or weren't you?"; "Did you or didn't you?"; "Will you or won't you?"

Some men refuse out of principle when up against an inquisition such as Sen. McCarthy staged. The public is able to know who refuses out of principle and who from devious reasons.

And so Dave Beck, the fat, soprano-voiced emperor of the teamsters, comes into the investigation chamber. His hoodlum bodyguards can't come with him. His lawyer is one of the vested-interest type Republicans.

And the fat man in his tenor voice invokes the Fifth Amendment.

And from all over America there is grim and humorless laughter.

The American people are not fooled.

Nor are the decent men in the Teamsters' Union.

Nor are those who head up the AFL-CIO.

Dave Beck was finished before he made his plea.

For all his arrogance and abuse of power, he had built on the sands of corruption. And his house was falling into the sea.

It was a great day.

The big man, needing only a toga to appear as a bloated, jaded Nero, was suddenly a little man. He was afraid. His pompous retreat was so phony as to be preposterous. He was a pink pig and Sen. McClellan had the apple all ready to put in his mouth for roasting.

Now is the time for the AFL-CIO to act and suspend him and, for the time being, his union. Beck himself, by his craven pomposity, publicly revealed himself in his true light. The enemies of labor, who have been trying to stamp all organized labor with the tar of the teamsters, are in full cry. But Beck now is naked . . . a fat tenor, corrupted by his own power.

The teamsters, labor and America today are lucky to have him so revealed—naked on the ice floes of the Fifth Amendment—and the wind is blowing cruel and cold.

It is a sight to warm the cockles of the heart.

Arsonists on the Loose Are a Menace to All

All Atlanta is disturbed by the new outbreak of arson, resulting last weekend in two home fires. Apparently there is a pattern in the incidents linking a series of costly blazes in residential areas for about a year.

The fact that several persons seem to be involved would indicate vandalism instead of mental illness as the underlying cause. The real firebug usually operates alone. But whatever the reason, police should make every effort to apprehend the culprits and end the fear of every homeowner that his house will be next.

Private citizens should cooperate with police in watching for and reporting suspicious activities. They should try to get a description of those involved, including clothing, automobile and tag number if possible.

Arsonists are a menace to life and property and spare no one. Those guilty of such incidents as occurred last Sunday should not be able to run loose in the community. They must be caught and put away.

Senate Needs To Strip Shucks From the Corn

Special favoritism to commercial corn growers of the Midwest again has sprouted its greedy tassels in Washington.

The Senate Agriculture Committee has approved legislation to allow planting of a 51-million-acre corn crop instead of the 37.3 million that previously had been approved. The new figure represents an increase of some eight million acres over the base acreage adopted for last year.

Then the committee comes up with approximately 100 million dollars extra in benefits for growers who put into the soil bank an amount of acreage equal to 15 per cent of their new planting allotments. That amounts to paying the favored farmers not to plant corn acreage that they hadn't planted anyway under the program the previous year.

Georgia farmers received no such special consideration when their tobacco allotment was cut 20 per cent on the acreage they actually had been planting. What they are allowed to deposit in the soil bank must come from the 80 per cent that is left.

The Senate needs to remove the shucks, look at the kernels inside this neatly wrapped piece of legislation and reject it like the House did.

The Lamp of Healing Gains New Brightness

Atlanta opened a bright, new chapter in its medical progress Tuesday when Piedmont Hospital moved into its new home on Peachtree road.

The concrete and brick building offers the latest in facilities, everything from piped-in oxygen to announcement of a baby's birth via a loud speaker system that carries the glad tidings from the delivery room to the anxious father in the waiting room.

The structure is equipped to the hilt to further the ideals and practices of healing that have been associated with Piedmont Hospital since its opening in 1905. The new building is a monument to the faithful leaders who worked untiringly over the years to make it possible and to generous citizens who donated time and money to the project.

Even so, much remains to be done to make Atlanta the medical center this section of the South so badly needs. High on the list should be an adequate hospital for veterans.

And let's not lose sight of the fact that the old Piedmont Hospital building which has served so well should be examined thoroughly for whatever role it may be able to fill as an outpatient clinic for the mentally ill or for other medical purposes. Surgery to the structure and some good stitching may renew its usefulness.

Let 'Spirit of Bermuda' Revive Grand Alliance

Reports at the conclusion of the Bermuda meeting of President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain are highly encouraging. The Western world can only hope that the former cooperation between the two countries can be restored.

According to these reports, the former close wartime association—especially relating to intelligence—will be restored. It was a breakdown of such intelligence or the ignoring of it that resulted in the British-French fiasco in the Middle East and our near panic which accompanied it. Secretary of State Dulles fumbled the ball which Eisenhower himself has tried to retrieve.

For the first time in decades, the United States found itself on the side of the enemies of the Atlantic alliance. The catastrophic result was made to order for Moscow and the Communists quickly claimed the advantage. And curiously enough it left this country and Russia the only big powers left in the Middle East.

As for optimism about a settlement of the Middle East problem, there seems little cause for it. Col. Nasser still defies the United Nations. He has agreed to no settlement or negotiations with Israel simply because Arab hatred of that country is the citadel on which his power rests. He is still able to blackmail the world—with Russian backing.

Nasser has no military power left and no oil. He seeks both and his weapons are Arab nationalism and the Suez Canal. He is bluffing but with great success and the stakes are billions of barrels of oil—Arab, not Egyptian, oil.

With this as background, the Bermuda meeting becomes the most important Anglo-American conference since World War II. Let us hope that the vital alliance has been put together again and that mutual confidence has been restored.

Maybe it will be news to you that the liquid film scientists want to spread over Little Elm-Garza and other reservoirs to cut evaporation has proved a great success in lipsticks. C. E. Harbeck of the United States Geological Survey says the invisible, tasteless, harmless chemical, a form of alcohol that will not dissolve, has been extensively tested.

This is the sort of thing that makes scientific research so fascinating. Imagine spending months, even years, testing lipsticks in the home, in the lab or where ever your work may take you. Science holds a great future for young men in this country with even half an eye to their opportunities.

Call for Halt to Ever-Increasing Demands For Federal Funds, Citizen Tells Americans

Atlanta — I believe people are losing sight of the fact that taxes are too high. There are prospects of even higher taxes as long as the American people continue to approach Uncle Sam with bowed heads and outstretched hands. In order to reduce taxes we must stop the cry of "More federal aid is needed!"

I have just recently moved to Georgia and am not familiar with the problems of Georgia education. Have the people of Georgia proved to themselves, through honest and sincere effort, that it is impossible to raise the necessary funds to finance their educational needs? If you have, then you are in need of federal aid.

On the other hand, if you haven't exhausted every possible source, then I suggest you try this approach first. Do you honestly believe the federal government will send 11 million dollars annually to the State of Georgia without some "suggestions" as to how the money should be spent?

Perhaps if the states would relieve the federal government of some of the states' duties, then taxes would be reduced.

"Taxation will destroy capitalism" . . . words to this affect are credited to Karl Marx. Need I say more? ROBERT L. WALSH.

'After 34,310 Packs, No Lung Cancer Yet'

Staten Island, N.Y.—I disagree with the conclusions of the lung cancer report. I am 62 years old and have been smoking since I was 15 years old and have been smoking two packs or more a day.

How long do you have to smoke before you get lung cancer?

I have been smoking 47 years and haven't got it yet.

I still smoke and I intend to keep on doing so. If smoking gives people cancer, I should have it after all these years.

Gus, the Talking Bus, Called a Harassment

Atlanta—Gus, the talking bus, has not been happily received by me and a number of other Atlanta Transit patrons who have been heard to express themselves.

It seems the idea is to contribute to safety, but in the first place, Gus does not have his voice synchronized very well with the mechanism of the bus and by the time he gets around to saying "Step down please: watch your step, please," the passenger often is already on the sidewalk.

Regarding safety, as for Atlanta traffic, the passenger gets off the bus on to the sidewalk and not into traffic in the street; so the safety element apparently applies to that of actually getting out of the bus. As one passenger was overheard to comment, "There will not be one out of 50 passengers who doesn't know already how to get out of the bus and who doesn't have intelligence to be careful in doing so."

For passengers who like to get a calm start in the morning before getting to the office, to have Gus constantly coming on with his annoying voice is a harrassment.

Cabinet Budget Talk Riles the Democrats

WASHINGTON—Democrats on Capitol Hill are becoming increasingly irritated over recent remarks by President Eisenhower and his Cabinet members tending to blame Congress for the Republican administration's huge $71,800,000,000 budget. No one has yet voiced that irritation more caustically or effectively than Georgia's Rep. Prince Preston in a speech on the floor of the House.

Preston learned that Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks had appeared on a New York television program and told his TV audience that Congress could cut the budget if it really wanted to. Weeks also said Congress could whack 50 million dollars out of his own department's 804-million-dollar budget.

But when Weeks subsequently appeared before Preston's subcommittee on appropriations, it developed that the commerce secretary did not actually want any of that 50 million dollars whacked from his budget.

Preston is a courteous, soft-spoken man who doesn't like to get into controversies with Cabinet members. But Weeks' attitude irked him so, that the Georgian took the floor of the House to really light into the secretary.

He charged Weeks with giving the nation "doubletalk" on who is responsible for the Eisenhower budget. And he accused the Republican Cabinet members of "a pattern of conduct" whereby they are trying to "put the monkey on the back of Congress" as far as the high peacetime budget is concerned.

Then nailing Weeks to the wall, Preston noted that the secretary himself had proposed to the Congress a budget for his department 28 per cent higher than last year's. And the Statesboro congressman pointed out that during the last four years Congress has cut a total of 798 million dollars from Weeks' proposed budgets for the U.S. Commerce Department.

Sen. Sam Ervin, the genial and astute North Carolinian, has an ardent but elbow-bending admirer who is wont to telephone the senator in the middle of the night to praise him. One night last week this lush got Ervin out of bed to tell him he was the greatest senator in the United States. . . . "In fact," said the inebriated gentleman, "you are second only to Herman Talmadge!"

Rep. Carl Vinson, who is second only to Speaker Sam Rayburn in point of service in the House, presents a dignified picture as he strolls in and out of the speaker's lobby with a homburg hat and a cane. . . . The highly respected veteran chairman of the House Armed Services Committee is affectionately known to his colleagues as "the admiral."

Sen. Richard B. Russell so zealously guards the rights and prerogatives of the Senate that last week he blocked adoption of a resolution directing Sen. James O. Eastland of Mississippi to answer a federal court subpoena.

Eastland had been subpoenaed by the defense in a case involving a contempt of Congress charge against Seymour Peck, former New York newspaperman. And the Mississippian actually wanted to testify for both the prosecution and defense.

But when Russell pointed out that it would be a dangerous precedent if a defendant in a criminal case could "drag a member of the United States Senate into court," Eastland asked that the resolution be dropped and said he would appear in court voluntarily.

We're Lagging Language-Wise

Say what you will about ancient languages, but English as it is spoken here is far from dead.

The language changes with the age and circumstances. The French discovered a river in a hot, dry land and called it "Purgatoire for purgatory. A semi-illiterate English-speaking pioneer came along, asked the name, chewed it awhile and spit it out "Picket Wire."

The sign painter goes out to label the front window of a cafe. He is told it's the "Elite Cafe." He writes it in big letters: Alight Cafe.

One of those bebop characters listens about the Suez crisis and says, "Why did they wanta dig that crazy canal anyhow?"

Presently, there has worked into the language the word "wise" as a suffix such as radiowise and televisionwise, as I heard it on the car set the other morning.

And so it is we go on glibly—taxwise, dollarwise, tranquilizerwise, educationwise, airwise, groundwise, seawise, and otherwise ad infinitum.

Not Solomon in all his glory was as well-equipped as we. Wisewise, that is. And "right word" foolish!

The reference help reads: "Now that baseball season is near, here are some words to use instead of 'won':

"Amazed, astonished, beat, belted, blew down, blew through, bopped, caught with defenses down, collapsed before, conquered, cracked, cuffed, defeated, devastated, dropped, drove past, dumped, edged, edged out, executed, fell before, felled, flailed, flipped, flogged, froze, fueled past, galloped past, gored, hammered, jolted, lassoed, lost to, mangled, mauled, knocked over, nosed out, notched a triumph over, nudged, ousted, outlasted, outslammed, outvied, outbattled, passed, pushed over, ran over, rocked, roped, scrambled, scuttled, skinned, smashed, smothered, staggered past, stopped cold, struck down, squeaked past, squeezed, squelched, surged past, surprised, throttled, thumped, tipped, topped, toppled, tripped, trimmed, trotted over, upended, upset, walloped, was victorious over, whipped, worsted and won over."

To which you can add, "Atomized."

Free Self From Sin For Supreme Joy

What can I do about my sins? Someone asks me that question nearly every day. All of us have sinned and sooner or later all of us feel a sense of guilt. We want the burden lifted. There are three things to do about our sins: (1) Look up. One is tempted to brood and to keep saying, "Why did I do such a thing?"

But futile regrets never right the wrong. Let us remember that first of all, sin is against God and our wrong hurts Him the most.

In the play, "Green Pastures," God is pictured as looking down over the world and saying, "What more can I do? I sent a flood. I sent prophets and lawmakers and still my children sin." The drama moves on until God, looking down on the earth again, says, "I see a young man carrying a cross up a hill." And when we begin to understand how God suffers to save His children, our self-centered brooding is changed into true repentance.

(2) Give up. Repentence looks at the past with regret but it also looks to the future with resolution. The sincerity of repentance is measured, not by sorrow over the past, but by determination to rid our lives of that sin forever. We recall that the guilty king in "Hamlet" asked, "May one be pardoned and retain the offense?" And to that question he answered "No." We must remember that God cannot forgive it until we forsake it.

(3) Make up. In some cases this involves restitution. If one has stolen money from another, he must repay it. We recall how Zaccheus said, "If I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold." And Jesus replied, "This day is salvation come to this house" (Luke 19:8-9).

Sometimes it means reconciliation. Surely we cannot expect God to forgive us if we do not forgive others.

We are taught that on the Cross Christ was the "atonement" for our sins. We will understand the meaning of the atonement if we will pronounce it differently—at-one-ment. Sin separates one from God. Christ, being God, has hold of the power of God. Christ, becoming man, is within reach of man. Thus, when by faith I take hold of the hand of Christ, I become "at one" with God. That is the climax of what to do about my sins — to become reconciled with God.

The scars of sin may remain but they serve only to remind us of Our Father's love and to inspire us to the higher and purer life. When we have "made up" with God the old force of sinful habit is broken and we are filled with His power.

Peek Is Permitted Into 'Inner Circle'

WASHINGTON—While the White House is pretty well sealed off and insulated these days, we occasionally get a revealing glimpse into what goes on there and of the thinking and attitude of the inside circle when one of that elect group makes a speech somewhere and pulls up the curtain a bit.

The most recent illumination came from Bernard M. Shanley, President Eisenhower's appointment secretary, in his answers to some questions asked by students of Fairleigh Dickinson University at Rutherford, N.J., after he made a speech to them.

We learn, for example, that the President will greet "every ruler of every country personally from now on" when such visit here. Though Shanley did not explain the reason for that change of protocol, it is obvious enough. You perhaps recall how the President went to the airport to greet personally King Saud of Saudi Arabia when he came here a few weeks back, a gesture that singled out the Arabian monarch for special treatment. That was noted with resentment by friends of Israel, who knew that such an honor had not been accorded to other rulers and heads of state who have come here in recent years to confer with the President.

Also there is a future event in mind. This is the prospective visit of Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. The British have spread the word around that if she comes here she will expect to be met personally by the President as was done in the King Saud instance.

Most illuminating of all, perhaps, was the insight given by Shanley into the hands-off attitude of the President toward the integration problem in the South, which has been so studied that it has become very noticeable.

The students who sat before Shanley seemed aware of it, judging from the question from one of them as to whether the President's secretary "considered President Eisenhower indifferent to the South, as has been charged." His reply was that "more has been accomplished in the past four years than in the previous 20."

Afterward, however, he said the Supreme Court public school integration decision had "set us back many years." When queried later about this remark he sought to tone it down by saying he felt the decision had done "incalculable damage" but was only a temporary setback for integration. He emphasized that he considered it a "right decision."

The attitude he revealed, though, reflects the complaint you hear among Southerners, even the "moderates." They contend that if the decision had been delayed it would have been easier to adjust to it. They argue that the South gradually would have adjusted to integration on its own, even without the Supreme Court. They are very vague, however, about how long that would take or how long the Supreme Court decision should have been postponed.

It's strange for a White House official to accept this attitude; but it may explain why the President has not tried to use his great personal influence, as he has been besought to do, to try to bring about understanding, tolerance and conformity.

Anyone who understands the Southern people knows that whenever the decision came, should it have been delayed, it would have been resisted and probably with the same heat and bitterness as of today. That would have happened under any circumstances. It would seem that the best way to look at the decision is that the South will be just that far ahead in trying to adjust to it and such adjustment admittedly is going to be difficult.

Attention Accorded Bottled Bugs' Genes

Along about 9 o'clock, when we were just beginning to worry a little, we heard a car door slam in the driveway. We all went charging out and you could see him stiffen, uneasy for fear somebody was going to grab him and hug him or do something sentimental like that and embarrass him in front of his friends. But nobody did. We just said "Hi," and he said "H'lo," gruff and deep, keeping us at a distance until the other guys were gone.

And when I stuck out my hand to shake hands with him, thinking maybe he wouldn't mind this orthodox greeting, he didn't take it. He put a bottle in it.

Not a bottle, exactly. A vial with cotton stuffed in the top. And in the vial there were a lot of little bugs crawling around. So I went in the house carrying this thing with the bugs in it while he came along behind, lugging his suitcase, carrying something shapeless wrapped in a newspaper under his arm.

It turns out to be a flower pot with some sort of green plant in it, but the plant looks as if it had been in a wreck for it has bandages on it here and there and looks a little feeble. It is something he has done in botany, grafting one kind of a flower on another and he has brought it home as a present for his mama.

"And these termites, I guess, are for me," I say, peering at the vial with the bugs in it. "Just what I've been needing. We have been short of termites here lately."

"Sorry to disappoint you," he says. "Those are fruit flies. I breed 'em." He held the bottle up to the light. "The black ones are the males. The ones with the stripes on their bottoms are the females. The gestation period is 9 days. By the time I go back to school I should have several hundred. If things work out as I hope, I will be able to note various genetic changes from generation to generation. For example, I started out with a male with normal wings and a female with vestigial wings. The purpose of the experiment is to see which gene will dominate — and what proportion."

That's what you send them off to school for, I guess. To wonder and to learn. To test, to inquire, to experiment.

But the things that interest them are sometimes startling. It never occurred to me, for example, that one of my own would ever spend hours feeding bananas to little insects, peering at them through microscopes, measuring with delicate instruments the spread of their wings.

It just goes to show, I guess, that not only fruit flies but people can change a lot from generation to generation.

Kadar Says Tito Aping Hitler Line

MOSCOW March 26 (UP)—Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar today made headlines in all Soviet newspapers with a speech denouncing the "national communism" of Tito as the "twin brother" of Hitler's Naziism.

Kadar, visiting the Soviet Union spoke at a meeting of workers in Sverdlovsk.

The press quoted him as saying:

"National communism does not exist. There is only international communism.

"The slogan of national communism signifies the attacking of the international labor movement. This slogan is a late-born twin of Hitlerite national socialism and we Communists must fight it."

The speech was the strongest denunciation in the press here to date of the national brand of comminism practiced by President Tito of Yugoslavia.

In a reference to the Oct. 23 revolution that wracked Hungary and brought him to power when Soviet tanks attacked rebels in Budapest on Nov. 4, Kadar said "we do not intend to yield to the pressure of counter - revolutionaries or justify their hopes.

"We have not the slightest thought to weaken the friendly and allied Soviet-Hungarian relations, but on the contrary we will strengthen them," he said.

Kadar and his delegation are expected to return to Moscow Thursday from a tour of Soviet industrial centers to sign a pact with Russia on Soviet aid and the status of Soviet troops in Hungary.

'Brass' Is Silent on Reports Duke Staged 'Royal Blowout'

Kent

Played leapfrog across a bar.
Showered each other with potato chips.
Used martini glasses as footballs.
Tried to dance with the barmaid.

Lewis launched his investigation last week after a complaint from the barmaid, Mrs. Doreen Pocock of the Royal Hotel in nearby Darlington.

Adjutant Capt. J. C. Walton said: "Col. Lewis realizes his silence can be open to misinterpretation but he hasn't anything to say. I don't know when he will have."

Teens Shake, Rattle, Roll Those Ghosts

PARIS, March 26 (UP)—Startled police heard giggling and singing sounds filtering up from the dank underground crypts of the Paris catacombs early today.

Officers descended into the subterranean burial passages and discovered 19 thrill-seeking teenagers holding a champagne party beside piles of skeletons.

The group of boys and girls, said to belong to society families, broke through a heavy iron gate and descended into the catacombs last night carrying candles, sandwiches and chilled champagne.

There they sang and danced in the galleries which contain thousands of skeletons.

When the teen-agers emerged at about 2 a.m., police wagons were waiting to take them to the station. They were let off with small fines.

He's the Van Doren Of the Toddler Set

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

MAC McCLEARY: "We are living in the present—tense."

IF PATRICK TIMOTHY BOLAN were old enough to write Santa Claus a letter, he'd probably ask for an adding machine.

Patrick Timothy Bolan

"The kid is numbers-happy," grins his fond dad, Tom Bolan of 2665 Roswell Rd, Northwest.

Bolan doesn't have to read bedtime stories to his precocious son. At two years and nine months Patrick Timothy can amuse himself with grown-ups' magazines — calling out page numbers up to three digits and recognizing advertisements and commercials he spotted previously on TV.

The youngster amazes party guests by correctly identifying their cigarette brands and the makes of their automobiles. His mastery of slogans, standard brand trademarks and assorted intelligence mystifies the neighbors, and led one to dub him "the Charles Van Doren of the toddler set."

His parents think perhaps Patrick Timothy has a photographic memory. When he's a little older, they plan to find out through certain tests at Emory University. In the meantime the little boy continues to get his kicks through numbers. If you don't believe it, here's proof by Photographer Tom Aldred, who recorded Patrick Timothy's reaction to an adding machine.

AN ANONYMOUS READER has raked Atlanta Accent over the coals—and rightly so—for calling Puerto Rican Grady Hospital student technician Yvonne Davila a "foreign miss."

In a letter postmarked Augusta the reader points out that persons born in Puerto Rico since April 11, 1898, are American citizens. We stand corrected—and are mighty glad to know the U.S. can claim such a bright and beautiful citizen as Miss Davila.

Red Cross Here Furnishes $1 Million in Free Blood

A million dollars' worth of blood will be provided free to hospital patients by the Greater Atlanta Red Cross in the next year, a hospital official said here.

Gilbert McLemore, president of the Atlanta Hospital Superintendents Council, said the council has approved a plan to notify patients when they have received free Red Cross blood.

"A sticker or stamp will be placed on the patient's hospital financial statement to indicate the blood has been provided by the Red Cross," McLemore explained.

In the past, some patients have been under the impression that they paid for Red Cross blood. Actually, any charge that is made is by the hospital for laboratory processing.

"The Red Cross does not charge one penny for blood," McLemore emphasized. "Any charge is for the necessary laboratory procedures to make sure the patient is getting the proper blood to safeguard his life and health."

The Red Cross supplies the great majority of blood in Atlanta area hospitals, although two hospitals get about 40 per cent of their blood through their own blood banks.

McLemore said the Greater Atlanta Red Cross Blood Center has a quota of 48,000 pints of blood for the year. This blood would cost more than $1,000,000 at the commercial rate of $25 a pint, he said.

The Red Cross provided the following amounts of blood to Atlanta area hospitals in the past year: Emory University Hospital, 4,174 pints; Crawford Long Hospital, 3,342; St. Joseph's Infirmary, 3,716; Georgia Baptist Hospital, 1,952 and Grady Hospital, 2,165.

The blood center here is an important part of the total program of the Red Cross, which is now conducting its annual fund campaign.

Theater Under-the-Stars Slates 6 Hits

"Plain and Fancy" and "Damn Yankees" are among six musical hits to be included in the 1957 Municipal Theater Under-the-Stars program.

All long-run Broadway plays, the Atlanta productions will play for one week beginning July 9.

"Plain and Fancy" is scheduled for July 9-14; "Carousel," July 16-21; "Where's Charley?" July 23-28; "The Wizard of Oz," July 30-August 4; "Damn Yankees," August 6-11, and "The Pajama Game," August 13-18.

The shows this year play Tuesday through Saturday, instead of the Monday through Saturday schedule of last year.

Eric Mattson, producer-director of the summer musical shows at Chastain Park for the last three years, is in New York casting television and Broadway personalities in leading roles.

Sherman Frank will return as musical director, and Pittman Corry will again be choreographer and director of ensemble staging.

Under sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sale of tickets will sell at $1 and $2 for reserved seats, $3 for box seats.

Queen Ushers Atlantan Into Order of Empire

Hugh Garland Head Jr., Atlanta attorney and legal adviser to the British Consulate, has been awarded an honorary membership in the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth.

The British Consulate here said Head would receive the award from the British ambassador at the Embassy in Washington, D.C., on April 4.

A native Atlantan, Head graduated from the Atlanta Law School in 1937 and has practiced law here since that time.

East Point C of C Directors Back Joint Bond Issue

Directors of the East Point Chamber of Commerce are "solidly behind" the proposed April 17 $35,000,000 Fulton County bond issue, Charles Martin Jr., organization president, said.

Martin said the directors have adopted a report of a sub-committee headed by C. P. Glover Jr., urging that East Point join in supporting the county portion of the joint $86,930,000 Atlanta - Fulton County issue. East Point naturally has not voted on the Atlanta portion of the issue.

"Our group believes the bonds are necessary to provide improvements to keep the entire metropolitan area abreast of one of the most rapidly developing segments of the Southeast," Martin said. "We are asking our members to support the request and to seek the support of others in our community."

Soviet To Permit Poles To Leave

MOSCOW, March 26 (AP)—The Soviet government has agreed to permit the repatriation of Poles in the Soviet Union.

The agreement provides that for repatriation a Pole must prove his Polish citizenship as of Sept. 17, 1939, the day the Red army invaded Poland after conclusion of a nonaggression pact with Nazi Germany. He must also apply for repatriation by Dec. 31, 1958.

There was no hint of the number of Poles affected.

State Board To Activate A-Program

A statutory commission to plan Georgia's future in the atomic era was activated Tuesday with Frank Neely, Atlanta businessman, as chairman.

The Georgia Nuclear Advisory Commission, created by act of the 1957 Legislature, supplants a similar agency set up earlier by executive order by Gov. Marvin Griffin.

Twenty-four members of the new commission were sworn in by Griffin just prior to an organization meeting. Eleven others are to be given the oath of office later.

The group elected Harllee Branch Jr., president of the Southern Co., vice chairman, and Robert Wallace Jr. of Georgia Tech, secretary.

Neely reported on progress of the program for obtaining a nuclear reactor for Georgia Tech. He said that Dr. Walter H. Zinnx of Dunedin, Fla., a pioneer atomic scientist and now a consultant in nuclear engineering, has been retained to assist in the planning.

He said Zinn has told Tech authorities that if the reactor is obtained it will be necessary to train many more technicians and to obtain a much larger electronic computer.

Other members of the commission sworn in were Robert O. Arnold, Covington; D. B. Lawton, Rome; Dr. James E. Boyd, and Dr. Paul Weber, Georgia Tech; O. O. Rae, Atlanta; John I. Spooner, Donalsonville; Rep. Chappelle Matthews, Athens; Agriculture Commissioner Phil Campbell; Freeman Strickland, Atlanta; State School Supt. M. D. Collins; Mrs. Frank Dennis, Milledgeville; William A. Cetti, Atlanta; Knox Walker, Atlanta; president O. C. Aderhold of the University of Georgia; Dr. Walter Cargill, Atlanta; Clark W. Duncan, Buena Vista; Rep. J. Ebb Duncan, Carrollton; Dr. Edgar Pund, Augusta; and Dr. Bruce Schaeffer, Toccoa.

Griffin Just Laughs At Race for 2nd Spot

Gov. Griffin Tuesday laughed off a rumor that he may become a candidate for lieutenant governor in next's year primary.

The governor broke into laughted when told at his news conference taht such a rumor was making the rounds of the capitol.

"I'll answer that one," Griffin said, "like I have all the others."

He then repeated his oft-mentioned intention to devote the remainder of his term to turning in a good record for his administration.

Balloon Falls In Alabama; 150 Ft. Long

EVERGREEN, Ala., March 26 (AP)—A mysterious white plastic balloon measuring an estimated 150 feet from end to end was found on a farm near here yesterday by a badly frightened Negro woman.

The balloon, whose mark of identification appeared to be a letter "B" on a metal fitting, was partly deflated and tangled in trees on the farm of Wilson Cross and his wife, Martha, about 10 miles northeast of here.

It was similar to another balloon that settled into the yard of a suburban home at Nashville, Tenn., Saturday night.

Sheriff's officers and National Guard Col. Leon Salter of Evergreen were unable to identify the strange object or tell where it may have originated.

DR. ADAMS ON TRIAL

Top Lawyer, Top Detective Tangle in 77-Minute Duel

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—One of Britain's most brilliant lawyers tangled today with one of Britain's greatest detectives at the murder trial of Dr. John Bodkin Adams.

Defense Atty. Geoffrey Lawrence and Scotland Yard's Herbert (The Duke) Hannam dueled for 77 minutes in a dramatic thrust and slash of court room cross-examination.

Dr. Adams—accused of murdering a rich elderly widow, Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, by giving her drugs—watched almost spellbound from the prisoner's box as the two battled over vital evidence.

TRIES TO TRIP HIM

Lawrence ripped into Hannam, trying to trip him up.

"You say you first interviewed Dr. Adams in the evening," said the barrister, "but your deposition says it was in the morning."

The hawk-faced detective looked down from the witness box and replied with disdain: "This is not quite correct. If you will read my deposition carefully you will find that it says p.m." Lawrence peered at his papers and replied: "Perhaps you are right."

It is not perhaps," said Hannam, "I am right."

For the last six days of the trial Lawrence has been relentless in his cross-examination of prosecution witnesses. He scored heavily at the expense of three middle-aged nurses.

But Hannam was different.

Lawrence, with heavy sarcasm, asked the detective to pinpoint a piece of evidence. When the sleuth asked if he could refer to a copy of th court record, Lawrence raised his eyebrows.

"ANY OBJECTIONS?"

"Have you any objection, Mr. Lawrence?" asked red-robed Justice Patrick Devlin.

"Oh, no," said Lawrence. "If he cannot answer my questions without referring to his notes—then let him have them."

"That," interrupted Hannam, "is quite improper. I want to be accurate."

The defense attorney quickly changed the subject and asked Hannam a long, involved question.

"The answer to the first part of your question is 'Yes,' said the detective, "and the answer to the second part is 'No.'"

Once more the barrister changed the subject and asked Hannam about statements Dr. Adams is alleged to have made when changed with the murder.

"Actually," said Lawrence, "Dr. Adams gave you only a few casual answers."

"No, sir," boomed the sleuth. "He was most loquacious. He was dogmatic. . . ."

Lawrence tried to halt the detective.

"He was a very, very shaken man. He was distressed. . . ."

"Very well, very well," cut in the barrister, hoping to shut Hannam up.

"I want to help you all I can, sir," smiled the detective.

British Trap Rebel Chief In Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 26 —(UP)—A ring of British security police closed in tonight on a Greek-Cypriot rebel band believed led by legendary underground "General" George Grivas. His capture was expected.

Dispatches from the snow-capped Troodos Mountains area of northern Cyprus said the British troops taking part in the nine-day-old operation had ringed Grivas and his band in their mountain lair. They were advancing, "almost touching hands," to prevent the escape of the wily Greek army officer who uses the allas "Dighenis." Elements of five regiments were involved.

A 50-mile area was sealed off. It was reported that a regimental patrol from the Staffordshire Regiment had seen Grivas and that he was "definitely" trapped.

Grivas escaped traps in the past once fleeing so fast he left his sweater and glasses behind.

Cyprus Gov. Sir John Harding, in London for talks on the Greek-Cypriot underground rebellion for union with Greece, was reported delaying his departure for Nicosia to announce the capture of Grivas.

The London government postponed a final decision on a new Cyprus policy pending the return of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan from Bermuda, sources said.

The Eoka underground headed by Grivas has offered a truce in its warfare with the British if the British bring Greek Orthodox Archbishop Makarios from exile.

2 Men, Woman Sentenced Here In Heroin Case

Three persons were sentenced in federal court here Tuesday on charges of heroin-selling operations in Atlanta.

Peter Capiello, his sister Grace Vallilo and Peter (Pencil Pete) Contes, all of New York, were charged with violating U.S. narcotics laws. George Gaffney, district supervisor of the Bureau of Narcotics in Atlanta, said the operators had some 15 ounces of heroin to peddle here at $200 an ounce.

Contes was sentenced to five years in prison, Cappiello four years, and Grace Vallilo was given a two-year probated sentence.

Webb Seeks Court Sales Indictments

The Fulton Grand Jury next week will be asked to consider indictments in connection with irregularities in the Fulton Civil Court marshal's office, Sol. Gen. Paul Webb said Tuesday.

Webb made the statement after a grand jury committee questioned three deputy marshals one hour and 45 minutes. The three, Pat Burke, D. R. Flynt Jr. and John Windsor, had no comment on their appearances before the committee.

It was assumed, however, that the three were questioned about their connections with a transfer firm which was doing business with the court. All three had owned 33 stock certificates, worth $10 each, in the firm, but sold them when so directed by court officials, it was learned.

"I expect to present evidence to the grand jury and ask for indictments in the case next week," Webb declared.

The solicitor general did not specify against whom the indictments would be drawn or what charges they would contain.

The grand jury is investigating charges that were made against two former deputy marshals in connection with sales of repossessed property. The two, former Chief Deputy Marshal T. A. Poole and Deputy Marshal Raymond C. Bowden, resigned after charges were filed aginst them.

The charges alleged the two did not turn in the true amounts at which the items sold at court sales.

Webb's investigation of the case also has shown that at least one Atlanta collection attorney, who was not named, is involved in "irregularities" in the marshal's office.

Records in Fulton Civil Court show that the same attorney has been overcharging on court costs in garnishments filed to collect judgements on unpaid accounts, the solicitor's office has learned.

Civil Court Clerk Hewitt Chambers said such overcharges are "one of the worst troubles" his office has. They often go undetected because employes — due to the large number of cases filed in the court—are not able to check records on each case to verify the costs claimed by attorneys who filed them, he added,

The attorney in question also was not charged with all the costs he owed on jail fees in bail trover cases he filed and was not charged with all the costs due on fi. fa. actions he filed which could not be served, the investigation has showed.

Blooming Peach Tree For Peachtree Street

Peachtree street will get a peach tree Wednesday, and in full bloom, too.

The city parks department will plant the peach tree in an urn in the center of the Five Points intersection traffic island. It will be replaced in about 10 days with a flowering dogwood tree.

Mayor Hartsfield said already-blooming red, white and pink azaleas will be planted in the nine new urns on Marietta street's wide center lane in the first of a series of plantings during the spring and summer.

overturned, police said, scores of motorists halted their cars and, using any container they could muster, hurried to scoop up the free gasoline.

Police said they were unable to estimate how much gasoline was thus retrieved by the "free-loaders," but believed it to be a considerable amount.

Arrival of firemen put an end to the scooping.

Officers cut off traffic to prevent someone flipping a lighted cigarette or match into the ditch until after firemen were able to wash away the gasoline.

Three wreckers finally managed to right the tank truck and pull it back onto the roadway.

Murillo Portrait Sells For $22 at Auction

starts FASTER to EASE PAIN!

OVER 1½ TIMES FASTER than a leading STRAIGHT ASPIRIN	OVER 1⅔ TIMES FASTER than a popular BUFFERED ASPIRIN	OVER 2 TIMES FASTER than a well-known COMBINATION RELIEVER

★ Your doctor will tell you that pain relief depends upon two things: 1—The effectiveness of the pain-relieving preparation. 2—How quickly the ingredients reach the blood stream.

For the past two years a recognized independent medical research laboratory has been testing the absorption rate of "BC" against three other well-known pain relievers.

Headaches, neuralgic pains, minor muscular aches, pains of simple head colds and discomforts associated with normal menstrual periods—all quickly relieved by "BC".

For the temporary relief of minor arthritic and rheumatic pains and the agonizing discomforts of neuritis and sciatica, there isn't anything better or faster than "BC".

Facts Established—Accepted scientific measurements proved "BC" did start faster. Yes, after only ONE MINUTE the quantity of "BC" reaching the blood stream greatly exceeded the other three tested—proved, on the average, over 1½ times faster than the next closest preparation.

No Upset Stomach—In a separate series of studies it was also proved that "BC" does not upset the stomach.

47 Years of Testing—The fast pain-relieving effectiveness of "BC" is not news to those who use this time-tested formula (now over 89,000,000 packages per year). Over 47 years have gone into the development of this one product—"BC".

No one active ingredient of the type commonly used in headache remedies can safely surpass the relief-giving effectiveness of "BC". Buy a package of "BC" tablets or powders today and be prepared with a product that starts FASTER to ease minor aches and pains.

*All studies conducted by an outstanding independent medical research laboratory located in one of America's foremost medical centers. All data is based upon blood samples taken from human subjects ONE MINUTE after ingestion of the four preparations tested.

Japan Asks U.N. To Put Brakes On Nuclear Tests

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 26 (AP)—Japan has asked the 81 U.N. members to help stop all atomic and hydrogen bomb tests.

Nobusuke Kishi, prime minister and foreign minister, in a letter published here today, requested Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to circulate a March 15 resolution of Japan's House of Councillors asking Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States "to suspend all atom and hydrogen bomb tests now under contemplation." It "deeply regretted" that Britain was preparing to carry out tests this year around Christmas Island in the Pacific "notwithstanding repeated protests from the Japanese government.'

Hagerty Says Ike Trip To Augusta Uncertain

WASHINGTON, March 26. (AP)—James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said today he knows of no definitive" plans for President Eisenhower to vacation at Augusta, Ga., next month.

Hagerty was asked about reports that the President plans to arrive in Augusta about April 8 for a stay of a week or two.

"I suppose anything is a possibility, but I have heard nothing in the way of definitive discussion," Hagerty said.

For the last four years Eisenhower has gone to Augusta for a combination of work and golf immediately after the annual Masters Tournament held at the Augusta National Golf Club.

Beck Refuses To Give Up His Records to Probers

criminal case to be a witness against himself."

Beck's invocation of constitutional protection led to a call for a special meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations on Friday. He is a vice president of that body and a member of the executive council.

The union he heads is the largest in the country. Its membership ranges between 1,400,000 and 1,600,000. Three of its vice presidents are under indictment and a fourth has been convicted of illegally accepting payments from an employer.

Beck avowed his intention to continue as president of the union and to run for re-election at the September convention. He further declared he would not resign as a vice president of the AFL-CIO and said he did not feel bound by the body's policy statement that although the Fifth Amendment should be preserved, its invocation is not compatible with holding union office.

Beck identified former Sen. James H. Duff (R-Penna) as his "chief counsel." Duff was not present.

AUDIENCE LAUGHS

"I am following the advice of my chief counsel, former Sen. Duff," the witness intoned repeatedly. Finally the audience broke into laughter at Beck's expostulations.

Sen. McNamara (D-Mich) told Beck at one point: "I am not a bit impressed by the fact that your counsel is ex-Sen. Duff."

The all-day hearing turned largely on the remark in McClellan's opening statement that the president of "the largest and most powerful union in our country may have missappropriated over $320,000 of union funds."

STANDS ON TELECAST

Beck in a television show 10 days ago acknowledged he had obtained interest-free "loans" from the union but said he had paid back the money.

When McNamara asked about that, Beck consulted his counsel and replied that "the broadcast speaks for itself."

By giving an answer that is common knowledge even, a witness may expose himself to possible contempt action if he refuses to answer further questions along the same line. On the basis of some court decisions, lawyers often follow the cautious rule of not opening any door to questions while pleading constitutional protection.

CHALLENGE OVERRULED

During the exchange McClellan overruled Beck's challenge of the committee's jurisdiction.

"If you want to take the Fifth Amendment," said McClellan, "the chair will ask you this question:

"You you honestly and truthfully believe that if you made those (TV) records that you . . . now have present here today in response to the subpoena just served upon you—do you honestly believe the contents of those records would reflect information that might possibly tend to incriminate you?"

Beck began to read again his prepared answer but the chairman interrupted and repeated his question. Beck, after consulting his counsel, replied, "Yes, I think very definitely so."

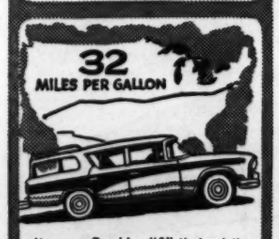
THE MAN WHO OWNED MOBY DICK

It was actually a too-big car. At gas pumps, it drank like a fish. So he called it "Moby Dick."

It even had fins like a fish. Parking it was like trying to squeeze a whale into a goldfish bowl.

He thought about trading "Moby" for an economical little foreign car. It was too little for 5 kids.

So he bought Rambler, only car with room for six 6-footers, plus European car economy, handling ease.



It was a Rambler "6" that set the NASCAR cross country record of 32 miles per gallon with overdrive.

Rambler's 1st in trade-in value among all low-priced cars, because it's the smartest buy; new or used.

chairmanship would be rotated among the services.

Twining has established a reputation of getting along with the other services without violent controversies such as shook the Joint Chiefs on some previous occasions.

A native of Monroe, Wis., Twining held top commands in both the Mediterranean and Pacific during World War II. He was appointed vice chief of air in 1950, then moved up when the late Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg retired.

Quarles' nomination for the job second to Wilson's produced speculation along two lines:

1. That Eisenhower might be moving him up the ladder to succeed Wilson when the latter moves out. Wilson has said he hasn't made up his mind about quitting.

2. That the deputy secretaryship is the end of the line for Quarles' rise in the Pentagon hierarchy. Those inclined to this idea point out that with one exception all defense secretaries have been picked from outside rather than promoted to the job. The exception was Robert Lovett, who moved up from the deputyship to succeed George C. Marshall in the Truman administration.

119 GALLONS

Suspect Shot, 'Shine Found In Car Here

A burglary suspect was shot Tuesday while fleeing arrest and police later found 119 gallons of bootleg whisky in his car, reports showed.

A man identified as Grover Cleveland Burt Jr., 25, of Atlanta and Dawsonville, was reported in "fair" condition at Grady Hospital with a bullet wound through the abdomen, records showed.

Patrolman L. L. Lackland said he saw a man in a car near a store at Piedmont road and Lindbergh drive, NE, that had been burglarized recently. Lackland said the man attempted to escape on foot.

"I thought he was a burglar and called to him to stop," Lackland said. "He kept on running. I fired a warning shot into the air and called to him to stop three more times. When he didn't stop I shot at his legs."

In the car which Burt abandoner, officers said, were found 119½ gallons of moonshine liquor. The car and cargo were confiscated.

Detectives L. M. Jones and W. B. Blackwell said they halted a car shortly after noon on Northside drive, near Leonard street, SW, and the driver jumped out and ran.

Jones, who gave pursuit, said he shouted "halt!" The man turned, came back and asked: "Would you have shot me?"

Jones said he assured the man he would have attempted to stop him.

That car was confiscated with 102 gallons of moonshine, officers related. The driver, identified as Jeffie Lemley, 21, of Dawsonville, was charged with disorderly conduct-whisky.

Pigeon-Hunting Youths Shoot Out Windows of Man Defending Birds

An auto parts company operator complained to police that two youths had knocked out two plate glass windows worth $1,064.

Bernard South, whose establishment is at 332 Piedmont Ave., NE, said he had protested the killing of pigeons and the air-riflemen had retaliated on his windows.

The jury also said the outside audit of county records revealed the records in good order.

"Gentlemen," the judge said, "I want to see good law enforcement and I'm sure you feel the same way."

He polled the jury to find how many were members of the various clubs. Five said they were club members.

"Organized gambling is a cancerous growth upon a community and cannot be tolerated," he said. "I doubt if organized charity ever sees more than one or two per cent of the profits from organized gambling that is carried on in its name."

Judge Manning named clubs in Marietta, at Smyrna, and in other communities which he suggested should be investigated.

"Fulton County and DeKalb County have cleared out gambling of this type," he said. "Gamblers displaced there and who are trying to move into Cobb County have not reckoned without public officials."

in today's highly competitive engineering and scientific talent market."

Allen said the Georgia Tech Foundation hopes to continue to raise more money each year for Georgia Tech.

"The day is past when the South and its institutions can be considered the nation's poor relations," he said. "We intend to do our part to pay adequate salaries and to get and keep our share of the best professors and to do a first-rate educational job."

Both Allen and Dr. Weber said the State Board of Regents, the governor and the Legislature have done their best to insure the advance of higher education in Georgia through increased allocations and special grants. They added that this increased support makes the Foundation grants "all the more important."

In 1955, the Georgia Tech alumni, headed by Fred Storey, and the Georgia Tech Foundation, headed by Walter Mitchell, started a joint campaign to arouse the interest of alumni, industrial leaders and businessmen in Georgia Tech's needs. The success of their campaign made possible the Foundation grants.

Sen. Talmadge and Tech Coach Bobby Dodd have been in the forefront of a group of the school's spokesmen who have toured the state to tell the story of Tech and to encourage greater support of the school.

Howard Johnson is chairman of the Foundation's committee on funds. Members of his committee are Cherry L. Emerson, George W. McCarty, Frank M. Spratlin, Robert H. White, Charles R. Yates, all of Atlanta; Julian T. Hightower, Thomaston; Y. F. Freeman, Beverly Hills, Calif.; Wayne J. Holman Jr., New York; George S. Jones Jr., Washington, D.C.; George T. Marchmont, Dallas, Tex.; and C. Pratt Rather, Birmingham, Ala.

Walter Mitchell heads the committee on needs which helps blueprint Tech's needs. The committee includes John C. Staton, Thomas Fuller, Fuller E. Callaway Jr. and Ben R. Gordon.

Robert Wilby, William Wardlaw and Henry Grady are co-chairmen of the Foundation's committee on allocations and investments whose job it is to recommend to the trustees what specified grants should be made. Members of the group are William A. Parker, George W. Woodruff and John P. Baum.

God Offers You a Chance For Cleansing Conscience

QUESTION: I lived with my husband two months before we were married. I have asked God to forgive me, but I don't feel that He has. Is there any hope for me ever feeling good and clean again? Is divorce the answer?—P. A.

ANSWER: Yes, of course there is hope for you. You will remember Jesus' tolerance and understanding toward the adultress to whom He said: "Neither do I condemn thee, go thy way and sin no more." He forgave Mary Magdalene, and the woman at Jacob's well, and they were both guilty of breaking the seventh commandment.

Divorce in your case is out of the question and certainly is not the answer to your problem. You must believe God's promises and claim them as your very own. He said: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (I Jo. 1:9)

You have let this past mistake prey on your mind. Now, you must focus your attention away from the past, and on God's promises for the present. He stands ready, not only to forgive you, but to cleanse you from "all unrighteousness." But, you must claim this cleansing as religiously as you have held on to your guilt.

As the negative, defeatist thoughts are crowded out of your mind by the positive, regenerating thoughts engendered by God's Spirit, you will find release from the past which has haunted you.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 hearts	2 spades	3 hearts
4 spades	3 hearts	5 spades	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Four of diamonds.

West was guilty of too impetuous an attitude in defense of today's doubled contract. Had he employed a simple bit of precaution, his side would have saved a substantial number of points.

Although North's continuation to five spades is highly dubious, there can be little doubt as to the soundness of West's double of the final contract. He held two aces, and partner had bid freely. East, therefore, should be able to obtain the lead at least once to give West a ruff, which would beat the hand two tricks.

After West led the four of diamonds, East's queen was taken by declarer's ace, and he returned a trump. With the intent of a greyhound in pursuit of the rabbit, West hopped up with the ace, then underled the ace of hearts.

South gratefully won the trick with his bare king and cleared the trumps. He had only to concede another trick to the diamond king to make five spades doubled.

If West hadn't been in such a blind hurry, he could have defended with complete assurance. It was the height of futility to hope for two diamond ruffs. To start with, East couldn't be expected to have two quick entries, for the ace of clubs should be assigned to South to justify his bidding. West should, therefore, be satisfied with only one ruff, and if East has the king of hearts, there is no hurry.

East, knowing that partner has led a singleton, will surely signal as to the method of reaching his hand, and West should permit him to speak his little piece. If he ducks the first spade lead, East will surely show out on the second round, and a message will come through.

East will make the eloquent discard of the heart trey, denying the possession of the king of hearts. It wouldn't matter now if West cashed the ace of hearts, or shifted to a club. The defense would sooner or later get their three natural tricks — a trump, a heart, and a diamond.

Ford is the best dollar-value of all the cars on the market . . . for the following sound reasons that are of vital importance to everybody who is planning to buy a new car.

Ford is worth more when you buy it!

Everywhere you look in the new Ford, you see plus-value features. And these advanced features that make Ford your best buy today . . . also make it your best buy for the years ahead.

There are many plus-values in the all-new "Inner Ford!"

You can see the plus-value in the Mark of Tomorrow styling of the new Ford. But you don't ordinarily see many of the plus-value features that are built deep down into the all-new "Inner Ford." For example, such features as the new, sturdier, contoured frame that lets the car ride lower with full road clearance . . . new suspensions, front and rear, that are integrated and balanced to give you smoother, big-car comfort and restful handling ease.

There's a big plus-value in Ford power for '57!

This year, you can pick a Ford engine to suit your power needs from a whole new family of mightier Ford V-8's—ranging up to the terrific 300-hp Thunderbird 312 Supercharged V-8. Or you may choose the new Mileage Maker Six—the largest and most powerful six-cylinder passenger car engine in the industry.

Ford is worth more when you sell it!

The years-ahead styling and rugged "Inner Ford" features that make Ford worth more now are the features that will make it worth more when you are finally ready to sell it or trade it in.

Ford is priced right!

With all of its plus-values, Ford still wears the lowest price tag. A comparison of manufacturers' suggested retail delivered prices proves that model for model, Ford is the lowest-priced, full-size car in America.

Action Test a Ford . . . and see for yourself!

The only way to get fully acquainted with a car is to get behind the wheel and drive it. And we will be happy to have you Action Test a '57 Ford at any time. Why not call us, or better still, stop in and see us.

Gray Hair Gradually Resumes Color Again

Colorless Liquid Replenishes Pigment in Ageing Hair

Chicago Ill. (Special Release)—It is possible to make gray or graying hair resume the look of youthful, living color, by coloring it subtly, gradually, in the privacy of your own home; without worrisome shade selection or sudden shocking changes effected by many tints, rinses, bleaches or coal tar dyes.

Gradual replenishment of pigment is the answer to the social and career problems caused by ageing hair. Now a completely clear liquid gradually feeds replenishing pigment to colorless hair cells, re-toning graying hair so subtly...with color that looks so natural ...that few will ever recall your hair was ever gray.

All you do is sprinkle a few drops of clear, colorless Kolor-Bak on your comb and run it through your hair daily for several days and, thereafter, only once or twice a week to keep your hair looking youthful.

Get Kolor-Bak, today, at cosmetic counters, everywhere, $1.50 plus 15c Federal Tax. Kolor-Bak, 657 W. Chicago Ave., Chicago 10, Ill.

Fire Leaves Family of 10 In Hall County Homeless

A family of 10 was made homeless Tuesday when fire destroyed a frame house in Oakwood, a Gainesville suburb.

This was the third fire within a week in which Hall County families lost all of their belongings.

Tuesday's fire was at a house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Dover and their eight children, who range in age from 13 months to 14 years.

Mrs. Dover said she was in the yard when she smelled smoke. She said she rushed into the house to find a bedroom in flames. She said she herded her children out safely but was unable to save any clothing or furnishings.

She said some of her children are ill and that her husband has been ill for about a year. Mrs. Dover said the children were being cared for by neighbors.

Court Asks Review of '55 Sale of Arnco Mills at Newnan

An accounting in the 1955 sale of Arnco Mills at Newnan has been ordered in federal court here.

U.S. District Judge Boyd Sloan ruled that the defendants in the case, Arnco Mills, Inc., should "account for the assets and properties of Arnco Mills, which were unlawfully transferred, assigned and conveyed to it on Aug 27, 1955, and for all proceeds derived from the use, consumption and sale thereof. After such an accounting has been made a proper decree should be entered."

The suit, heard last November in a non-jury trial, was brought by three stockholders, Hubert A. and W. J. Barje of Miami and the late Mrs. Mary J. Scarbrough of Anniston, Ala. Attorneys said that approximately one million dollars is at issue in the litigation.

As explained in court, a new corporation, Arnco Mills, Inc., acquired the assets of Arnco Mills. The plaintiffs held that the transaction was fraudulent. The defendants said that stockholders received all they could have expected. The stock, they claimed, had been selling for $135 a share, or $40 less than sale price.

Study of Primaries Out for Committee

By WILLIAM M. BATES

Some folks apparently have gotten the wrong idea about the role of the election laws study committee created by the last General Assembly.

Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson, who is chairman of the group, has received inquiries wanting to know what the committee is going to do about the county unit system.

Bates

Others have expressed hope that the committee will do something about the "five per cent" rule that helps keep Republicans off the ballot in Georgia.

These and similar political and policy questions will be ruled out by Fortson should anyone try to bring them up.

Fortson feels that the committee, which will probably go to work in a month or so, should keep out of questions involving primaries or political parties. Primaries, he contends, are the business of parties that hold them.

It is Fortson's view that the committee should restrict itself essentially to problems involving the general election laws. He wants to bring order, consistence and clarity to the presently jumbled, confused and ambiguious statutes.

PROBLEMS UNANSWERED

If Fortson's view prevails, some of the more vexing ballot law problems will remain up in the air. For instance:

Should county and state primaries be held at the same time?

Should candidates for the General Assembly run in state or local primaries if they are held separately?

Should county primaries be permitted to be held long in advance of the general election as is now the practice in some counties?

Should Republicans be permitted to vote in Democratic primaries?

When the resolution creating the election study committee was before the Legislature, there was some thought that it covered these and similar primary questions. The resolution directs the committee to conduct a "study of the election laws of this state and all laws relating directly or indirectly to such election laws." Primaries are mentioned specifically only in the preamble which declares the study is needed because of the problems that sprang up last year in "primaries and general elections."

But even if the committee avoids primary problems, there are a number of meaty questions for it to study.

QUALIFYING RULES

It needs to explore, for example, the question of the time for qualifying for the general election. State candidates must now qualify 45 days in advance of the election while county office candidates have until 15 days before the election to

This situation is believed to have contributed, in part, to the spate of independent candidates for county office such as occurred last year.

The committee may also want to clear up, once and for all, whether members of the General Assembly are state or county officials.

It needs to determine if the "five per cent" rule should apply to candidates for county as well as state and congressional offices. This rule, in part, provides that candidates not nominated in primaries must submit a petition signed by at least five per cent of the registered voters in order to get on the general election ballot.

Of course this law is aimed at Republican and minor parties, that normally do not hold primaries, and at independents. It is enforced on the state and congressional level; but there is some confusion over whether it also applies to county offices.

There's also a question of the deadline for transferring voter registration from one county to another and the cut-off date for new voters to qualify for a primary or election. Confusion exists, too, over who is responsible for holding general elections; ordinaries, justices of the peace or freeholders.

The physical form of the ballot needs study. Who has responsibility for making it up? Do local officials have any right to alter it?

Fortson now mails out a sample ballot form from which local officials print up their own. But in some instances, the ballot form has been changed at the local level; the result sometimes leads to confusion of the voter.

Imprisoned 8 Days in Boxcar, Plebe Lives Off Raw Potatoes

WEST POINT, N.Y., March 26 (AP)—A missing West Point cadet was found today in a sealed boxcar in the Jersey City, N.J., yards of the Erie Railroad. He had lived eight days on the car's contents—raw potatoes.

The youth, Jerome Lee Gibbons, 18, a plebe from Fulton, N.Y., lost 15 pounds while trapped in the car. Returned here and hospitalized at the U.S. Military Academy, he was reported weak physically, but mentally alert.

A doctor who examined him said he was dehydrated—that is, he dried out for lack of water. The only water he had was that contained in the potatoes.

"I just wanted to get away from it," railroad police quoted him as saying of his flight.

Academy authorities said Gibbons ran away March 17 because he was afraid he had flunked a periodic physical aptitude test.

Elusive Hill Slips From TB Hospital

In-again, out-again Dewey Lamar Hill escaped Tuesday from the correctional detention branch at Battey Hospital in Rome, police said.

Dewey L. Hill

Hill, 30, a former Atlanta automobile salesman, had been diagnosed as a tubercular patient and sent to the hospital following his latest brush with the law, Board of Corrections officials said. They added he slipped away from the hospital.

The husky former salesman was believed to have hidden between $10,000 and $15,000 taken in forgeries on banks and automobile concerns while on medical leave from prison last summer, Atlanta police said.

Detectives E. F. Jackson and L. N. Bradley said that investigators established that Hill took that amount and added they did not believe he had sufficient time in which to spend it. Officers were never able to locate the money.

Hill was arrested here Oct. 12, 1955, on charges of automobile larceny, altering motor numbers on stolen cars and burglary, officers related. They added he was tried Feb. 27, 1956, and was sentenced to serve 2-5 years and given a 10-year suspended sentence.

After serving only a few months in prison, officers said, Hill applied for a furlough to obtain surgery. They said he was granted a furlough beginning in June, 1956, and later was given an extension of time for additional surgery.

When Atlanta officers began searching for Hill on forgery charges, the Pardon and Parole Board issued an order canceling the furlough. He surrendered at the DeKalb County jail last November shortly before the furlough expired and was returned to the Atlanta jail Dec. 3, 1956, to face 10 counts of forgery.

While awaiting trial, Hill made an attempt to escape from a deputy sheriff's car in front of police headquarters. Deputies E. G. Fitzgerald and Fred Wray said he had obtained a court order stipulating that he be carried to a dentist.

En route back to the tower, they said, he managed to pick the lock on his handcuffs, leaped from the car, but ran into a utility pole and knocked himself out when they began shooting at him.

Decatur Fire Station Pilings Being Driven

Workmen began driving piling into the Trinity place location for the new Decatur firehouse Tuesday. The $143,000 structure is scheduled to be completed in approximately eight months.

It is the first project to be worked on since the $850,000-bond issue was voted in 1955.

The new building will contain two stories for housing quarters and equipment and a four-story-high training tower. It will be located about two blocks east of the present firehouse between Church Street and North Candler street.

Women Voters Okay Budget, Hear Plea for Anti-Slum Drive

The Atlanta League of Women Voters Tuesday re-elected their president, approved a $20,000-plus budget and heard a talk on slum clearance.

Mrs. Harry Dunstan was returned to the helm of the League along with the first vice president, Mrs. Ray Mitchell. Both will serve two-year terms.

Mrs. Dunstan has been acting president since last March when the League split over the admission of Negro women. The only stated criterion for membership today is "any person who subscribes to the purpose and policy of the league."

Newly elected officers are Mrs. Edward Kelley, second vice president; Mrs. Archer B. Greisen, secretary, and Mrs. E. A. Bancker, treasurer. Mrs. Greisen will serve a two-year term and the other two women will serve for one year.

Speaking at an afternoon luncheon, Charles F. Palmer, Atlanta businessman and author of "Adventures of a Slum Fighter," told the group it is "our job to get people interested in slum clearance."

He said, "We should let our officials know we're for the curent bond issue." It includes funds for clearing slums in the Butler, Capitol and University homes areas.

The $20,110 budget which was adopted by the League is almost $6,000 more than the past year's $14,271.39 expenditures.

Union Council Here Urges Support Of Entire Atlanta-Fulton Bond Issue

The Greater Atlanta Industrial Union Council, AFL-CIO, Tuesday notified Atlanta aldermen by letter it will support the $86,930,000 Atlanta-Fulton bond issue vote April 17.

The letter said, "The AIUC will work in every way with any of the community groups to get out the vote and explain the need for this bond issue, as we think what is good for the community in the long run is good for labor."

Hanson, Marshall Glow in Symphony Finale Here

The finale of the Atlanta Symphony's current subscription series, featuring composer-conductor Howard Hanson and soprano Lois Marshall, was a program of immense impact.

Miss Marshall surely belongs to the select inner circle of the world's greatest sopranos. And Hanson's genius grows more apparent with the passing of years.

Hanson's "Syhpony No. 2" was an excellent choice to demonstrate his special gift to contemporary music. For in this work the composer uses modern harmonic techniques and yet remains close enough to the cultural mainstream to appeal to the emotions as well as the head.

It was a tribute to Maestro Henry Sopkin that Hanson's reading was substantially similar to the one Sopkin delivered at Georgia State College last year. Here and there an emphasis was different, however. And the composer's tempi were a bit faster, notably in the in the intoxicating final movement.

Miss Marshall took on a veritable soprano-killed in Puccini's "In Questa Reggia." The work belongs with a handful of arias that truly separates the half-ways from the great.

Her dramatic, polished reading was overwhelming and drew a flood of "bravos" from the audience.

The soprano also demonstrated her splendid tonal quality and remarkable control in "Mi Chiamano Mimi" from Puccini's "Boheme" and Mozart's "Exsultate, Jubilate.'"

Miss Marshall sang the Mozart here last year on the Music Club series with the same perfection, but the orchestral accompaniment was a worthwhile addition.

The Symphony, incidentally, fared quite well without any guests, too. Sopkin opened with a lyrical, beautifully balanced reading of Barber's "Adagio for Strings." A smooth, dashing "Capriccio Italien" was equally well handled. The orchestra encored with the "Andante Cantabile" from Tchaikovsky's "Serenade for Strings" and a flambuoyant medley of marches.

Court Denies Pay Appeal Of Official

Fulton County's chief probation officer, who was cut off the county payroll Dec. 31 because he had reached the age of 70, has lost a court suit to force the county pay him his January salary.

Judge Clarence Vaughn of the Stone Mountain Judicial Circuit denied a petition by the officer, George Allen Maddox, for a mandamus to force Mrs. Mabel A. MacNeill, county treasurer, to pay him his January wages after County Manager A. E. Fuller ordered him taken off the payroll.

Maddox, who contended he works for Superior Court judges and is not affected by the compulsory retirement regulation, said he will confer with the judges and with his attorney before he decides if he will appeal the ruling.

The county contended that Maddox had elected on two occasions to come under a general pension law that included the compulsory retirement provision. Maddox has been chief probation officer since 1919.

Collins Hit On Federal School Aid

TY TY, March 26 (AP)—William T. Bodenhamer of the State Board of Education Tuesday assailed proposed federal aid to schools as tending "to further weaken the cherished American principle of separation of church and state."

He did so in an open letter to Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, challenging the latter's advocacy of federal school assistance as no different from U.S. help in building hospitals.

Bodenhamer declared that a statement of the superintendent on this point emphasized a substitute resolution Bodenhamer presented to the state board in opposition to federal aid. The resolution, the board member noted, pointed out that the federal assistance "will most likely go to religious and sectarian schools as well as to public schools."

Bodenhamer's letter to Collins continued:

"I regret very much that we cannot agree in this matter. . . . One of the major objections I hold is that such aid if given to religious and sectarian schools will tend to further weaken the cherished American principle of the separation of church and state."

The state board ended a three-day meeting last week without any action on the controversial federal aid issue.

Lanham Scores 'Meat Ax' Cutting Of Ike's Budget

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, March 26 — Rep. Henderson Lanham of Rome today asked his colleagues in the House not to use a "meat ax approach" in cutting the federal budget.

Although voting in favor of many economy measures, Lanham is fighting to save an increase in funds for rural library services.

"When we are cutting the budget, we ought not to use a meat ax approach, but we ought to do it sensibly so as not to destroy the programs authorized by Congress," Lanham said.

The Georgian is a member of the appropriations subcommittee handling the budget for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. That subcommittee already has trimmed the new budget by $119,000,000.

However, Lanham pushed successfully in the subcommittee for a $3,000,000 increase for library services, which include primarily funds for rural bookmobiles.

Conversation After Midnight

Some people I know are afraid of becoming repetitious in their old age—but I'm not. Nobody pays any attention to what I say no matter how much I repeat myself.

For instance, I keep telling my family and all my friends that the thing I abhor the most in this world is conversation after midnight. Talk to me early, I plead. Let's solve the problems of this world when the night is young. Let's exchange girlish confidences before our minds and eyes are befogged with sleep.

So what does everybody do? Every single soul with whom I am friendly or to whom I am related by blood or marriage is the kind of person who never gets in top conversational form until midnight!

The other night I thought the household was pretty well settled and I went to bed early to read Dr. Hervey Cleckley's best-selling book, "Three Faces of Eve," and to ponder such weighty matters as when will the dogwood be blooming at Holly Creek. The rain fell softly outside, and except for routine family noises that was the only sound. Of course the routine family noises might seem like bedlam to other ears, but time has muted them to me. I can hear the record player in the girls' room braying "Young Love," eggs frying in the kitchen for a midnight snack, and my son alternately listening to and trying to imitate trombonist Jack Teagarden in the next room, without really hearing anything. Those noises, being usual and more or less constant, are like the soughing of the wind in a peaceful pine glade to me.

So I read a little, listened to the rain and thought about what spring might be doing to the mountains. Then my youngest arrived with a fried egg and peanut butter sandwich and a great gnawing hunger for talk.

There's no place in the house so well adapted to eating as my bed, it seems, and naturally she crawled up and sat on my feet.

"Is he going in the Army?" she said, nodding toward her brother's room.

"Oh, some time," I said lightly. And then more firmly, "But not tonight. He's going to bed in a few minutes, I hope. As soon as he perfects the chromatic scale. And you'd better put up that gook and go to bed too."

"Oh, I hope he won't!" she said tragically, eating the gook. "The world's in such a terrible state . . . there's sure to be a war!"

"Now . . . now . . . " I began soothingly.

"There IS, Mother!" she said around the fried egg and peanut butter. "Egypt and Russia and all! You don't know! You always wanta look on the bright side."

"That's right," I said. "I'm an optimist. I keep hoping everybody will go to bed, so they won't be late for school in the morning."

"Mother!" she said reproachfully. "You don't pay a bit of attention to the inner-national situation. Can't you tell this world is bad off? We've gone about as far as we can go and the next war will be the end of the world?"

Suddenly I became conscious of the other noises—a callow teen-age idol type braying "Young Love" in one part of the house and the mournful notes of "Abide With Me" from a trombone in another part of the house. "Abide with me, fast falls the eventide . . . " In Creola it was our second favorite funeral song, ranking next to "Nearer My God to Thee."

"Excuse me," I said, trying to dislodge her from my feet. "I think I might as well get up and wash the dishes."

"Good!" she said. "I'll come and sit and talk to you. Do you know that 10 years from now everything's going to be so awful you and I might be trying to kill each other for mere food?"

As I said, I HATE conversation after midnight!

ART INSTRUCTOR AND HOUSEWIFE CONFER ABOUT ART
Richard Brunelle Gives Mrs. W. A. Herrick Jr. Pointers in Lettering

Struggling Art School Sets Its Own Course

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

A curious change in atmosphere takes place when a visitor leaves the plush, elegant new galleries of the Atlanta Art Assn., rambles along the old halls and stairs of the High Museum, and strolls across the walkway to the old Floyd W. McRae home.

The physical surroundings progressively get worse. The Atlanta Art Institute, teaching division of the association, holds classes in the High and McRae buildings.

Perhaps the transformation is symbolic of the difference between the museums—which display the works of artists who have "arrived"—and the school—which trains artists who are struggling.

(Fourth in a series. Thursday: The Atlanta Artists.)

Whoever heard of an artist who didn't struggle, somehow, or a private, nonprofit art school that didn't almost collapse from all its problems?

The lack of elegance gives the freedom that an art school needs, for here there is no formal exhibition but a moving group of students and teachers.

Flat - heeled rumple - haired, open-collared—they clamber up and down shabby stairs to beat clay into shape or to smear paint across a canvas.

Two Atlanta artists — Ben Shute and Bob Rogers—have been the key men in keeping the school going over the years. Mr. Shute started it in 1928, and Mr. Rogers came a year later.

Strangely enough, the depression helped it along, for young artists who could not afford to go away to better established art centers got their education at home.

WAS ABOUT TO CLOSE

Students on the GI Bill flooded the school for a time, but by 1955 enrollment had dropped to 20 full-time students. The school was about to close.

The association always had made up the deficit between tuition and operating costs, but now it had a full-time job just keeping the museums growing at top speed. So the whirlwind money-raisers of the association—perhaps heady with pride of their new galleries—got busy.

Like the good parent who believes in the worth of his struggling teen-ager, the association set up a three-year program to give the school a chance to mature. Dr. Allen Albert, then president of the association, appointed a school board of business and professional people, including Atlanta artists, to establish the policies of the school and administer funds. John Stuart McKenzie now heads the board.

$105,000 IN PLEDGES

Last spring the members raised $105,000 through pledges to develop the curriculum and the faculty. And Richard Brunelle was appointed director.

At the end of three years the institute will be on its own to assume an equal status with the museums and contribute its share to a total art association. Its quality is expected to be good enough to attract students and win its own financial support.

In this first year of the program, 50 full-time students are registered. The staff numbers five full-time and 23 part-time professors. One day a week leading local artists are invited to instruct. Four out-of-town instructors have been included in the teaching program this year.

FOUR TYPES OF STUDENTS

The school attempts to offer an attractive program to four types of students—the professional, the hobbyist, the graduate who wants to take special training, and the child.

About 250 businessmen, career women and housewives have come this year to improve an old hobby or find a new one. Classes run from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Nearly 150 children come to school on Saturdays.

The institute awards a bachelor of fine arts degree, but the curriculum is not accredited. Leaders hope to get the school accredited — no art school in the South is now—and in the process to offer a good program on the graduate level.

PURPOSE

In a recent review Mr. Brunelle made this statement about what the school is trying to do: "It all boils down to one simple purpose . . . to so deal with students that they will be zealous and inspired in their work, broad in their vision, and efficient in their techniques."

The present operating budget is $80,000. Since the school cannot hope to run on tuition alone, it is turning to business and industry for support. Mr. Brunelle believes that, by training personnel to expand the

Sports Separates In Printed Silk

Another chapter in this 1957 spring print story is that devoted to printed silk sports separates, something quite new in the annals of sportswear fashions.

These take the form of printed silk blouses or shirts ensembled with any or all of the following: A matching printed silk skirt; a skirt in nubby silk that looks like linen in a plain color that echoes one of the key colors in the print; a pair of Bermuda shorts in the solid color silk.

If you have both the print and plain skirt, you may assemble several different variations of your costume. As always, the prints themselves are in colorful floral patterns.

There'll Be No Rock 'n' Roll For Producer of 'Happy' Films

By BETTY CARROLLTON

The script calls for no rock 'n' roll when one of Hollywood's top producers starts the cameras grinding.

Joe Pasternak, producer of such films as "The Great Caruso," "The Student Prince," "Hit the Deck" and "The Opposite Sex" never slants his pictures toward any generation.

"I wouldn't make a rock and roll movie," he said here recently, "because it simply isn't good business. That sort of thing is a fad that appeals to only one particular group."

Joe Pasternak

"HAPPY" FILMS

Young people, he declared, are an important part of any theater audience. But this maker of "happy" films believes there is no need to use special material to lure teen-agers to the box office.

"Of course," he admitted, "Presley is a big star. Not because he's so good, but because the young people are loyal to him. Adults tell them he's not what they should like, so, following the course of human nature, they're crazy about him. It's more rebellion against parental authority.

"Young people don't want to be told what they should and should not like!"

"TEN THOUSAND BEDROOMS"

On a swing around the country in connection with his latest release, "Ten Thousand Bedrooms," starring Dean Martin and introducing a new teen-age idol, Dean Jones, Pasternak talked with "hundreds" of young people in various states.

He labeled them "wonderful," and said they have "keen, alert minds. They ask intelligent questions with sincere interest."

Commenting on the movie industry as an occupation for young people, Pasternak declared "There is no success in any field unless you are happy with your work."

"Young people should seek careers in the movies only if they are talented — and really want to be in that business.

"Or if they really need the money," he added with a smile.

"GROW UP A LITTLE"

Pasternak, who established Deanna Durbin as a star in the film "Three Smart Girls," pointed out that he allowed Miss Durbin to "grow up a little bit in each movie."

"That is very important," he declared. "A child star must not lose the years of growing up."

A producer stopped Pasternak's son, Peter, then eight, on the street one day to offer him a role in a movie. Pasternak refused to let his son accept.

"They offered him $800 a week," the producer recalled. "But he didn't need the money. And he has no talent. To accept would have been a big mistake."

LIKE A MOVIE SCRIPT

Pasternak's own success story reads a bit like a movie script:

During his high school days in Hungary, his imagination was fired by reading American history, and particularly the story of Abraham Lincoln.

When he graduated he left for America, practically penniless. He landed in Philadelphia in 1921, where his uncle found him a job punching holes in leather belts for $11.50 a week. ("I thought I was rich," he recalled.)

Later he went to New York and found work as a busboy in a cafeteria. He lived in a small room back of a butcher shop and paid his rent by picking chickens for his landlord.

Little by little, movies got into his blood. Following an urge to be an actor, he invested his savings on a drama course. Then he crashed a Long Island film company for work.

EXPERIENCE PAID OFF

Here his experience — as a busboy — paid off in his first studio work: He was hired as a dishwasher for six months, then became a waiter.

Months later, he played a bit part in a film, but was told he had no talent.

When after many months he was offered the job of fourth assistant director on a film, he accepted. In two years, he was first assistant director for the producer.

In 1928, he went to Europe as assistant director for a movie that would take "only a few months." He remained in Europe eight years, producing a number of successful films.

MADE A HIT

When he got back he turned out the hit "Three Smart Girls."

Pasternak joined MGM in 1941 and has been producing hits ever since.

While Pasternak may never use rock 'n' roll in his films, he does get a taste of it at home.

His 15-year-old son, Mike, is a Presley fan.

"I allow him to buy three Presley records, providing he buys one Tchaikovsky at the same time," the producer said.

"I think that's a pretty good ratio," he grinned.

Women Lawyers To Hear Panel

The Georgia Assn. of Women Lawyers will meet Thursday, March 28, at 6 p.m. at the Peachtree-on-Peachtree Hotel.

Dr. Catherine Miles, Mrs. Elizabeth Sterling and Mrs. Virginia Holder Green — all members of the Atlanta chapter of the American Society of Women Accountants—will hold a panel discussion.

Melody Hill Club To Meet Today

Melody Hill Garden Club members will meet Wednesday, March 27, at the home of Mrs. R. A. Martin with Mrs. W. E. Reynolds, Mrs. A. G. Swan and Mrs. G. O. Taylor as assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Frank Nottingham and Mrs. Ralph Moor will display artistic arrangements. Members will tour the Spring Hill gardens after the meeting.

"UNCLE REMUS" in the person of Mrs. William Gifford told many of the beloved stories about Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox at Billy Gifford's sixth birthday party. The little miss with the perky spring bonnet is Nancy Smith, and that's Billy Gifford in the Brer Rabbit suit and Tommy Coulter is the young man with the grin. Mrs. Gifford made the Uncle Remus mask. The party's theme was suggested by young Billy, who is an avid admirer of Joel Chandler Harris' classic. Billy saw "Song of the South" six times.

Jackson Speech Set by Junior Woman's Club

The Junior Atlanta Woman's Club will meet Monday, April 1, at 8 p.m. in the Atlanta Woman's Club. Elliott R. Jackson will discuss "Woman's Role in Civil Defense."

A business meeting will follow the address, and the executive board will meet at 7:30 p.m.

Garden Club To Meet Today

Mrs. Albert D. Brown will entertain the Four Seasons Garden Club on Wednesday, March 27, at her home, 3243 North Wood Valley Rd., NW.

Honor guests will be the new members who are Mrs. Charles M. Watt Jr., Mrs. J. Borden Jackson, Mrs. H. R. Lamar, Mrs. W. J. Holmes and Mrs. T. L. Johnson.

The club's annual flower show is set for April 16 at the Ida Williams Library in Buckhead.

Lenten Tips

Freezer Can Be Big Help In Fixing Meatless Meals

The Lenten season is in full swing now with all its demands on the family cook's imagination. And it does take a lot of dreaming time to come up with meatless menus week after week.

Here are a few tips on letting your freezer do a king-size portion of the work:

Main dishes keep at least two months if properly wrapped and stored at zero temperature. That goes for practically any casserole, stew or chowder, with the exception of those that call for whites of cooked eggs or crisp salad vegetables.

Both tuna fish and salmon casseroles, particularly ones containing macaroni with potato chip topping, freeze well. And there are so many variations of these to try.

Tomato sauce for the popular pasta dishes is a good freezer item, too. Instead of preparing it several times during Lent, make four or five quarts at one time and store in the freezer.

Sandwiches are naturals for Lenten lunches and they freeze well, too. Especially good for this season are those filled with egg yolk, cheese, peanut butter and fish spreads.

Make a stack, wrap them well, and serve them days later.

Kirkwood Club To Meet Thursday

The Kirkwood Homemakers Club will meet Thursday, March 28, at 10:30 a.m. in the Kirkwood Methodist Church.

Mrs. R. B. Giles will show a film about the Goodwill Industries.

Mrs. J. H. Wilson, Mrs. L. Janssens, Mrs. L. F. Milligan and Mrs. E. R. Shivar will entertain at the covered dish luncheon.

ATLANTA SOCIAL AND CULTURAL LEADERS AT AFTER-SYMPHONY SUPPER

The Social Scene

Sparkling Party at Mirador Room Climaxes Symphony Social Season

By MARGARET McLEMORE

The Mirador Room of the Capital City Club never looked prettier than it did last evening when Atlanta's social and cultural leaders gathered after the symphony for the elaborate supper-dance honoring the visiting delegates to the 11th biennial conference of the National Assn. of Women's Committees for Symphony Orchestras.

Congratulations are in order to the board of directors of the Atlanta Symphony Guild, hosts for the party. Acting hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Birnie assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce E. Woodruff. Petite Mrs. Woodruff's blondeness was accented by a cocktail-length gown of brown lace over pink taffeta with a becoming off-the-shoulder neckline. Mrs. Birnie also drew many compliments on her gown of bouffant white lace.

IVAN DAVIS, house guest of the Alex C. Kings, who leaves tomorrow for Charlotte, N.C., where he will appear in recital Friday evening, was complimented by Miss Ima Hogg of Houston, Tex., on the brilliant concert he gave last Sunday at the Atlanta Art Assn. The brilliant pianist first met Mrs. King in Miami, when he won the award from the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Mrs. Charles Chalmers, who was wearing a handsome coral crepe gown, had fun chatting with Mrs. Melvin G. Patton of Glenshaw, Pa.

Mrs. Thornton Kennedy wore a floor-length white Ceil Chapman gown, a perfect foil for her brunette beauty. She and Mr. Kennedy sat at the table with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy Jr., and the Jack Adairs.

MRS. ALFRED KENNEDY JR. was telling them how much she is enjoying having her daughter, Ginger, home for the spring holidays. Ginger and her classmate at Miss Hewitt's—Wendy Oehlert of New York City—are going to about as many parties as Mrs. Kennedy is this week.

Mrs. F. V. Van Snell of Toronto was overheard complimenting Mrs. John S. Knox, vice chairman of the conference, on how smoothly the conference is running and what lovely parties Atlanta hostesses are giving for the visitors. Mrs. Van Snell's daughter, Judy, is well known in Atlanta, having visited Connie Anderson, daughter of the Albert Andersons.

Mrs. Lon Grove and Mrs. Charles Jagels, who entertained at a luncheon yesterday for the visiting delegates, evidently had some of the most unusual flower arrangements ever, for everyone was commenting on them.

A CONGENIAL table was that of the Robert F. Adamsons. Seated with them were Mrs. John Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooledge and the Jack Tarvers. Mrs. Adamson, who handled publicity for the conference, wore a striking blue organza gown.

The Ed Smiths assisted the Joseph Birnies in entertaining members of the central committee who sat at the Birnie table. They were Mrs. Leo Pflaum of Minneapolis, Minn.; Miss Hogg, Mrs. James Hatfield and Mrs. Eric de Spoelherch, both of Philadelphia.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard Hanson—he's director of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester—were at the table with Mrs. Rembert Marshall, chairman of the Atlanta committee. The Henry Tichenors drove up from Monroe, Ga., for the event and were seated with Mrs. Alan Valentine of Washington, D.C.

MISS LOIS MARSHALL, who sang at the symphony concert, and Thomas Brockman—were seen chatting with the Julian Hightowers, Mrs. James D. Robinson Sr., Mayor Hartsfield and Mrs. Stanley T. Wallbank of Denver.

Former Atlantan Mrs. Stanton Therrel of Highlands, N.C., attended with Mrs. William Huger and her daughter, Callie, and Mrs. James O'H. Sanders. Delegates seated at their table were Mrs. William Covington and Mrs. McMaster MacArthur both of Chicago, and Mrs. Henry S. Miller Jr. of Dallas, Texas.

MRS. HOWELL HANSON, who gave such a wonderful party before the symphony, was there. Also, the Henry Sopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Lewis and Mrs. C. Sterling Bunnell of New York. The Lawrence McEvoys came with the Irving Ragsdales and the Howard Smiths attended with Mr. and Mrs. James C. Malone. Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger were at a table with the Harold McKenzies.

Tomorrow's the finale of the conference and the delegates are unanimous in declaring Atlanta hospitality is "fabulous." They'll be feted at a luncheon at Brookhaven Country Club tomorrow by Mrs. Joseph Seitz, and after a tour of Atlanta's residential section, they will attend the informal open house in the home of Mrs. Carling Dinkler Jr.

THE FINALE of the supper was the dessert—flaming crepe suzettes, and chef Paul Schweikert did a magnificent and dramatic job.

Congratulations are definitely due Mrs. Jack Adair and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy Jr. for the menu. Every dish was superb. Many of the guests commented on the musical notes on the glazed Virginia ham.

Mrs. James P. Cheves and her assistants, Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris Jr., Mrs. Charles H. Black and Mrs. William W. Conrad, had folks practically lined up congratulating them on the effective decorations.

Father Reduces Phone Talk to Minute

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am almost 13 and I think this is a serious problem. My father will only let me talk on the phone for one minute at a time.

I asked him why and he said, "You can talk at school." I wouldn't mind if it was for three minutes, but one minute! Can you help me?

If you are trying to carry out your father's orders you deserve an award for being the "teenager who has the shortest telephone calls on record!" It would be difficult for anyone to accomplish much over the phone in one minute, and obviously this is your dad's way of stopping you from using the phone entirely—which I think is unfair..

You should be allowed to use the phone but, of course, you should keep the length and number of your calls to a reasonable limit.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

My girl friend told me I should find another girl friend because her father will not allow her to receive company.

The only time I ever get to see her is during school hours. Her mother says it is all right for her to receive company, but her father won't agree.

I love this girl very much and I don't want to find another girl. She is 16 now and we both think she should be allowed to date. If I call her, her father tells me she is not at home.

Do you think I should try to talk to her father, or should I try and forget her? Will you please advise me what to do?

If the girl's father will see you, I think it might be a good idea for you to talk to him—providing she has no objections and you feel confident you can present your case in a convincing, adult manner.

Her father's attitude is wrong, of course. A trustworthy 16-year-old girl should be allowed to date. So, if you think you are enough of a salesman to sell Pop the idea and can impress him with your own personality at the same time, my advice is to give it a try.

One word of caution, since the girl's father is against her dating anyway, I suggest you do not give him the impression that at your age you might be considering marriage. That would be enough to scare even a broadminded father—to say nothing of the one you wrote about. Good luck!

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only—as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Art School Sets Its Own Course

use of applied art, business and industry will see the value of investing in the school.

However, pointed out Mr. Brunelle, the school does not want to lose its touch with the basic creativeness of art, and must concern itself with developing the artist as well as his techniques.

The school also will make an effort, Mr. Brunelle added, to co-ordinate the professional curriculum with the liberal arts programs offered in the colleges around Atlanta.

HIGH SCHOOL ART DAY

The institute belongs to the University Center in Georgia. The staff visits high schools to explain what art offers in the way of a career, and Tuesday the institute sponsored High School Art Day.

The alumni group, now headed by Sol Beton, has become vigorous and forceful in working for the school. Last year its Bid Sale project raised $1,600. It also supports the social affairs of the students.

And it looks like the Atlanta Art Institute is on its way to maturity.

President of Harvard Wed His First Student

The Nathan M. Puseys made a big change when Dr. Pusey became president of Harvard University in 1953. They had lived in the small town of Appleton, Wis., for 18 years, where Dr. Pusey was president of Lawrence College with an enrollment of 800 students.

And now, of course, they have been swept up in the huge educational city of Cambridge, Mass., where 12,000 of the top students in the country go to school.

Harvard, too, made a big change when Dr. Pusey arrived, for he became the first non-Eastern president in the history of the traditional, 320-year-old institution. Dr. Pusey was born in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

DONE WELL TOGETHER

But Harvard and Dr. Pusey have done well together, for this leader speaks fluently and soundly of educational matters. And the handsome, direct administrator has boldly developed some of the institutions that keep his university in its top position. He will be 50 years old next week.

Two of the three Pusey children live at home. James, 17, has just been chosen editor of his high school paper, and Rosemary, 15, also is in high school. Nathan Jr., now 19, is a student at Lawrence College.

The Puseys laughed a little ruefully about the demands on their time. Commented the educator in his Midwestern accent, "We had always lived as a close family group, but in our first year in Cambridge it was hard for either one of us to get home to dinner."

"LESS TIME FOR US"

His slender, quiet wife added with a smile, "Our teen-agers were growing up and had less time for us, too."

The busy life of a Harvard president has its compensations, for Dr. Pusey talked excitedly of his unlimited opportunities to build and learn. And Mrs. Pusey has become active in affairs of the college community, especially with the wives of educators and scholars.

It seemed natural for Dr. Pusey—teacher, student and proponent of liberal arts—to develop the Divinity School as his first project. He repeatedly has cited the need for personal religious growth as well as intellectual development in American universities.

"SOMETHING TO SAY"

And he's very glad to have men of the stature of Paul Tillich, one of the leading philosophers of the world. Dr. Pusey commented with enthusiasm, "Dr. Tillich really has something to say in the modern university. He has lived through the changes of world wars and the technical age to still give the important messages of religion."

Dr. Pusey believes that the function of a college is more than intellectual, but, in his words, "You can't teach people to be religious in a direct way. You have to put students in an environment where they can learn by experience to understand the values of living."

STUDENT, THEN WIFE

Dr. Pusey, whose mother was a teacher, took his first teaching job as the tutor of a 13-year-old girl when he was a student at Harvard, class of 1928. She was Anne Woodward, the girl he married in 1936, in the year she graduated from Bryn Mawr.

EDUCATOR AND WIFE VISIT ATLANTA

Dr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard

In conversation with the couple, Dr. Pusey usually takes the lead, but it is obvious that his wife stays in touch with the educator's thoughts and policies. Said the blue-eyed woman with a touch of humor, "I've listened to a few of his speeches."

They spend a week or 10 days on a tour of some of the Harvard clubs in the larger cities each year. This year their tour of the Southeast represents their first visit South, and they drove down to get more of an idea of the land.

Dr. Pusey majored in English in undergraduate school. After he graduated, he "bummed around Europe" on his own for a year, and then returned to New York with the idea of going into the publishing business. But he started teaching in a private school and realized that he wanted to stay with that profession because it "was so much fun."

He went back to school to study Greek, for he wanted to get as much as he could out of ancient classic literature. And, he added, he has learned a lot from the "exciting study of people in the Greek city states."

Your Stars Today

Daily Guide—If you put your mind to practical ways and means today, things should go smoothly. Don't skip details. Make reports, have serious discussions or interviews, take a business trip, or seek out some older and wiser friend for advice.

Those with birthdays in the first week of March, August or December are under favorable aspects for smooth performance.

The late evening hours bring a pleasant interlude of entertainment, stimulating companionship, or some creative interest. Those who are wise will add a little spark to everyday matters; concentration is fine, but talent won't hurt if you can add that, too.

The same group of Arians, Leos and Sagittarians benefit in the evening, too.

Happy Birthday, Aries! If you will turn to others for support you will find it. While this weekend starts off a fairly active period for you, it is not until the second half of this year that you can really get under way for the long haul. Nor is it necessary for you to be quite as aggressive as usual.

New dream detergent! New Super-Rinse all with AE-160* washes "yellowed" nylons, cottons, linens pure white again!

*AE-160, exclusive whitening discovery in new all, gently washes "yellowed" whites back to beautiful white again. Safe for colors and fine washable fabrics.

WHITES WASH WHITER

ENDS SUDS SCUM STREAKS

Another test shirt (shown above) shows how scum can deposit in folds of fresh-washed clothes. This Suds Scum, often left by hard-to-rinse thick-sudsers, can dull fabrics or scorch when you iron. But all leaves both washer and washables free from any sign of Suds Scum because its "controlled suds" rinse out almost as easily and naturally as water itself.

COSTS LESS TO USE

One tablespoon of all gives water greater wash-ability than three tablespoons of the leading thick-sudsers! It takes so little of condensed all to wash even the grimiest work clothes free of dirt. Just measure new Super-Rinse all by the tablespoon . . . instead of by the cupful . . . and save on every wash load!

PRESCRIBED FOR AUTOMATICS

Automatic washer makers and servicemen prescribe all for best results in today's automatic washers. They know how many costly repairs and unsatisfactory washings result from "too much suds." But all actually helps an automatic washer wash and rinse clothes cleaner and whiter. Try Super-Rinse all in yours, and see!

Carl Eklund has a leave of absence from his position as assistant regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Atlanta to spend the Geophysical Year in Antarctica. He writes of his adventures in the land of whales and penguins, in Sunday's Atlanta Journal-Constitution Magazine.

Kentuckian To Head Pharmacy College

Dr. Oliver M. Littlejohn, associate professor of pharmacy at the University of Kentucky, has been named dean of the Southern College of Pharmacy in Atlanta, effective July 1.

He will succeed Dr. Melvin A. Chambers, who has resigned as dean to take a job in private industry. Dr. Chambers' resignation also is effective July 1.

Dr. Littlejohn is a former associate professor at the Atlanta school. He served on the faculty here from 1952 until September, 1956. He received his doctorate degree in pharmacy from the University of Florida.

Dr. Chambers came to the Southern College of Pharmacy in 1952 from the University of Texas, where he was assistant professor of pharmacy. He previously had served as graduate assistant at Ohio State University, where he received his Ph.D. degree in pharmacy in 1949.

Carlton Henders, chairman of the board of trustees of the Southern College of Pharmacy, said the board regrets losing Dr. Chambers "because he has made an outstanding record as dean of the college."

Dr. Chambers declined to reveal at this time the job he has accepted, but he indicated he would leave Atlanta.

Checking Self for Cancer Will Help Lower Death Rate

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Detecting cancer is everyone's business. Physicians wish that every individual could examine himself at regular intervals, inside and out, for early signs of malignancy. The situation would be perfect if he promptly reported any abnormalities to the physician.

This do-it-yourself maneuver is impossible but there is no reason why it cannot be performed on accessible organs such as skin and breasts. Several years ago a technique of self-examination of the breast was described. Nowadays, millions of women are carrying out this simple procedure and the death rate from the disease is bound to be reduced.

The plan is reasonable and practical. It is well known that at least 98 per cent of women who develop breast cancer found the tumor themselves. Why not detect the lesion early, instead of waiting until advanced "lump" shows up accidentally during bathing or dressing?

The method is simple, and we will send the instructions to any reader who asks for it if a stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Several followups have appeared. In Iowa, for example, 289,000 women were instructed on this procedure. Of these, 1,300 were canvassed by questionnaire a year later and seven malignancies were found. But only 47 per cent were making the examinations every month.

A similar survey among a smaller group in New Haven disclosed that 77 per cent had performed the examination at least once and 60 per cent were making it a regular habit. A repeat survey several months later showed that only 29 per cent were continuing to make it a routine practice.

It is unfortunate that nature provides so few symptoms in early breast cancer. Finding a "lump" still is the best we can do, and this is why self-examination is highly recommended.

No woman can afford to neglect a checkup of this kind because 5 per cent of the female population can expect to develop breast malignancy and 20,000 die annually from this cause. Procrastination is all too common. Only one-fourth of all fatal cases, according to statistics, were reported to the physician in an early stage.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions relating to health and hygiene in his column, and by mail when self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Letters should be addressed to Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta 2, Ga.

FROM BERLE TO BOWIE

Producer Dilemma: Quizzes or Cowboys?

By PAUL JONES

TV producers are a bunch of copy-cats.

Remember several years ago when comics were the fad on television? . . . Milton Berle was "Mr. TV" and Jackie Gleason was "Mr. Saturday night" . . . and NBC wasn't satisfied with just one comedian on a show. The network had six funny men on a Sunday night program.

Alas, the comics soon grew stale. They were not to blame themselves. The network program directors who, at times act like a bunch of sheep playing "follow the leader," just crammed more comedy down the TV gullet than the people could take.

The laughs turned to frowns. Berle went boom. And now the rest of the crop, as Fred Allen prophesied in his arresting autobiography, are on the "Treadmill to Oblivion."

THEN, YOU WILL RECALL, We had the quiz show format.

Everybody wanted to produce a quiz show. We had super-duper quiz shows with jackpots ranging up to $64,000 and modest little quizzers which gave away small things like mink coats and trips around the world.

Milton Berle

We now have 20 quiz shows regularly showing on TV. The $64,000 jackpot has been hiked to $256,000.

If the networks hadn't run out of names with which to identify these quizzers we might have had more. We now have, among other things, "Hold That Note" and "Name That Tune." Then there's "Beat the Clock," and "Tic Tac Dough," "To Tell the Truth," "Do You Trust Your Wife," "The Price Is Right," "You Bet Your Life" and "Masquerade Party."

ON SOME OF THESE SHOWS, the matter of asking questions is only incidental. Most of the time is taken up telling who donated the prizes.

But, the quiz show has served its purpose. And, like the comedian it is headed for that "treadmill to oblivion." The TViewer has been overdosed again.

All of this means exactly nothing to the TV producers, though.

They have a new gimmick—the westen. And, if they can find enough titles for the shows and enough horses for the hombres to ride, the American living room is going to look like Cactus Kate's saloon come cold weather.

YOU PROBABLY DIDN'T KNOW IT, but we already have 21 westerns on TV regularly each week.

We have Wyatt Earp, Broken Arrow, Dick Powell's Zane Grey Theater. Jim Bowie, Roy Rogers, Gene Autry, Wild Bill Hickok, Western Marshal, Annie Oakley, Buffalo Bill Jr., Cheyenne, Sheriff of Cochise, the Lone Ranger, Frontier Doctor, Tales of Wells Fargo, Gunsmoke, Johnny Mack Brown, Tales of the Texas Rangers. Do we need to continue?

Dick Powell

But, that's only the beginning.

The networks have promised that the western — the adult western, that is—is coming into "its own" starting in September.

Pastor Gives TV Gold to Youth Home

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—A Presbyterian minister tonight declined to try for a $100,000 question on a television quiz show and gave his $30,000 winnings to a home for underprivileged children.

He is the Rev. Dr. James Robinson, 50, Negro pastor of New York's Church of the Master. The clergyman's category on NBC's The Big Surprise was Julius Caesar.

He was eligible to try for $100,000 in his question category but chose instead to give his total winnings to New York's Morningside Community Center, which operates two summer camps for underprivileged children. He helped found the center.

DESCRIBES FLUORESCENT CIRCUIT

10-Year-Old Quiz Whiz Is Correct for $96,000

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—Robert Strom, 10-year-old Bronx schoolboy, tonight reached the $96,000 level in his bid to win a possible $256,000 on a television quiz show.

The fifth grade youngster, a whiz at science, utilized his knowledge of fluorescent lamps and electricity to add $16,000 to his previous $80,000 winnings on CBS' The $64,000 Question.

Robert reeled off the answers to a complicated six-part question concerning the component parts of an electric fluorescent circuit. He was given this introductory statement:

In this fluorescent lamp, an electric arc flows through a certain vapor and transforms electrical watt input into radiation at a certain wave length. This radition, in turn, excites the phosphorous coating on the inside of the lamp.

Young Strom hardly thought twice as he answered four parts of the question on short order. Angstrom as the name of the wave length; mercury as the vapor; argon as the other principal gas; and ultraviolet as the type of radiation.

He swept through the fifth part of the question by explaining that a 60-watt incadescent lamp gives only as much light as a 20-watt fluorescent lamp because the conventional lamp expends most of its energy in heat, not light.

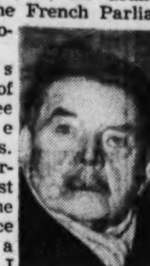
Ex-Premier Herriot of France Dies

LYON, France, March 26 (UP)—Edouard Herriot, 84, the Grand Old Man of the French Parliament, died today.



Edward Herriot

Herriot was premier of France three times in the 1920s and 30s. He was overthrown the last time because he insisted France should pay a World War I debt installment to the United States at the proper time.

He defied the Nazis and France's puppet Vichy government in World War II and was imprisoned in Germany.

After his retirement from the presidency of the National Assembly in 1953 because of ill health a special post was created for him as the body's honorary president.

Wearing rumpled suits and with a big briar pipe sagging eternally from his mouth, the elder statesman continued to influence French politics after World War II as an early backer of Pierre Mendes France and one of the early movers for a united Europe.

His death in nearby St. Eugenie Hospital followed several years of illness which ended in a respiratory infection involving the heart.

At his bedside were his wife, who was his only survivor; Andre le Troquer, who had succeeded Herriot as chairman of the National Assembly, and Pierre Cardinal Gerlier.

Georgia Tobacco Men Rip Pound-Acre Curb

By FRANK WELLS
Constitution Staff Writer

DOUGLAS, March 26—Tobacco farmers from all over south Georgia came to Douglas Tuesday to tell a Senate Agriculture subcommittee in positive terms that they want no part of a pound-acreage system of tobacco control.

The committee, headed by Sen. Kerr Scott (D-NC), included as members Georgia's Sen. Talmadge and Sen. Schoeppell (R-Kan). Talmadge became ill from an upset stomach early in the hearing and had to leave. He rested at the home of friends here until the hearing was over, then went to his home at Lovejoy. (The Associated Press said he became ill of a virus infection.)

The senators listened to small tobacco farmers and big tobacco farmers condemn the plan of limiting tobacco production by placing controls on both acres planted and pounds produced. The farmers seemed nearly all to agree that the plan would be a "wonderful one for farmers in North Carolina, where disease keeps production low."

But high-producing Georgia fields, the farmers said, should not be penalized.

First witness called was Frank Ellis, Department of Agriculture tobacco specialist, who outlined how the plan would work. Next, H. L. Wingate, Georgia Farm Bureau president, told the committee the Farm Bureau would back either bill.

HEAVY HATCHET

But the next witness wielded a heavy hatchet on the plan proposed by Sen. Scott. He was H. J. Quincy, Coffee County lawyer and farmer. He said Georgia developed into a heavy tobacco producing state in the face of the best opposition the Carolinas had to offer because Georgia could just produce better tobacco.

"This type of control is a system born of Soviet Russia," the farmer-lawyer said.

The plan would base a farmer's tobacco quota both on the acreage he plants and the pounds he harvests. If the yield in one year is very high, his acreage may be cut; whereas, if weather or other influences cause a bad year, his next year's acreage would be increased.

As the speakers before the committee waxed rather warm in their arguments, the other farmers in the crowded auditorium of South Georgia College showed their approval by shouts reminiscent of an old-time Talmadge rally.

MRS. BLITCH SPEAKS

Rep. Iris Blitch of Homerville spoke briefly to the nearly 700 farmers and told the committee she appreciated the senators getting down to the tobacco producing areas.

Opposition to the plan seemed to come from farmers with rather large acreage allotments, although many small farmers also testified against the proposal.

Lawton Ursrey, state senator from Hazlehurst and a tobacco farmer, said Georgia farmers should "pull out of the stabilization corporation rather than drown with the Carolina farmers." He asserted the plan of the bill to improve the quality by decreasing poundage per acre was unsound. He cited figures from his county to show the tobacco from high production acres uniformly brings a higher price.

Frank M. Boston Executive in Insurance, Dies

Surviving are four brothers, W. King Grant and Clarence K. Grant, both of Atlanta, C. B. Grant of Demopolis, Ala., and W. B. Grant of Meigs.

James J. Hines Of Tammany Fame Dies at 80

LONG BEACH, N.Y., March 26 (UP)—James J. (Jimmy) Hines, 80, one of the last of New York's old-time political bosses, who helped catapult Franklin D. Roosevelt into the presidency, died here today.

Hines, a blacksmith who turned to politics and became a power in the old Tammany Hall Democratic organization, had been in retirement since 1944. He was paroled from Sing Sing Prison in that year after serving nearly four years on a rackets conviction obtained by then Dist. Atty. Thomas E. Dewey.

Hines reached his political zenith at the Democratic national convention in Chicago in 1932 when he broke the solid Tammany support for Al Smith. He later became the dispenser of political patronage in Manhattan after Roosevelt's election.

Clinical Society To Hear Hickam Of Duke Tonight

Dr. John B. Hickam of Durham, N.C., associate professor of medicine at Duke University School of Medicine, will give the annual lecture of the Atlanta Clinical Society at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Academy of Medicine, 875 West Peachtree St., NE.

His subject will be "Studies on Pulmonary Ventilation in Health and Disease."

A graduate of Harvard University and Harvard Medical School, Dr. Hickam was resident at Grady Hospital in 1942-43. He was an instructor in medicine at Emory University School of Medicine in 1946-47, and he has been on the faculty of Duke medical school since 1947.

WANTED
INDUSTRIAL TRAINING SUPERVISOR
INDUSTRIAL SALARY ADMINISTRATOR
WITH the ability and desire to progress.
HERE'S a rare opportunity—and admittedly a tough one—for two young men with a maximum of 5 years industrial experience.
EACH man will start from scratch to plan and put into operation these programs for the DOW CHEMICAL CO's new Louisiana Division Plant. The plant, now under construction at Plaquemine, Louisiana, will employ 700 people when operations are under way in 1958.
IT CALLS for some experience, a solid background of professional education (degree in industrial, mechanical, chemical or closely allied engineering, or in business administration), plus character and imagination.
IF YOU think you fill the bill, send your resume in complete detail to:
E. P. Hammond
Employe Relations Dept.
The Dow Chemical Co.
P. O. Box 389
BATON ROUGE, LA.

INDUSTRIAL ENGINEER
THE rapid growth of a large and progressive manufacturer requires that an Industrial Engineer be added to the staff.
WE want a young man with 3-5 years' experience and preferably familiar with accounting methods. Salary commensurate with experience.

Skill and Merit Military Pay Would Cut Costs, Panel Says

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—A blue-ribbon Defense department committee reported today that military costs could be pared five billion dollars a year if the services would discard "antiquated" pay systems.

Ralph Cordiner, president of General Electric and chairman of the group, urged adoption of a new pay plan based on skill and merit.

The recommended pay scale would leave unchanged the starting salary of enlisted men until they reached the grade of corporal or its equivalent in the other services. The new scale, however, would enable the "good" soldier, sailor or airman to get increases more rapidly and to reach a higher pay than is now possible for any enlisted man.

As a further inducement for good men to stay in the services, creation of two super-sergeant ranks superior to the present top enlisted rank of master sergeant.

The proposed scale would permit an enlisted man to get as much as $440 per month in basic pay alone after only eight years of active duty. The present scale maximum for a master sergeant after 30 years of service is $335.40.

The proposed system would also discourage the re-enlistment of so-called "professional" privates—men who show neither ambition nor ability to rise above the lower ranks but who find the services a omfortable lifetime haven.

This would be done by placing a ceiling on base pay if they failed to show improvement or desire to advance within specified periods.

The recommendations apply the same philosophy to commissioned officers.

Hiroshima Protestants

The Ace Is a Card

JACKSONVILLE, March 26—Every time one of the Crackers belts a ball out of the park, all batsmen are automatically sentenced to two laps around the bases. That's the penalty Manager Buddy Bates has imposed to encourage opposite-field hitting during practice sessions at the Myrtle Avenue plant.

However, no amount of running seems to discourage Billy (The Ace) Reynolds from swinging for the right-field fence.

"Dern it, Ace, you've done it again," said a weary Cracker, as the beaming Reynolds tossed down his bat and started jogging around the bases. Even in batting practice, a home run is a home run to Reynolds.

Outlar

"Can't you hit the ball to left?" someone inquired as Reynolds puffed back to the batting cage.

"What do you mean, can't I hit to left?" answered Reynolds. "Don't you remember that home run I hit to left field off John Wingo in Atlanta last summer?"

No one seems to remember Reynolds as a home-run hitter.

"Well, I can't help it, if your memory ain't so good," Reynolds said, "but if you'll look in the book, you'll see 12 home runs under my name.

"One reason you may not remember 'em is because I always seem to hit 'em with no one on. I was always batting second behind Daniels, who hit 38, or behind Montag, who hit 27. So there was never nobody but the umpires on base when I hit 'em."

By now the Crackers had completed the morning session of their workout, and the bell signalled a break for sandwiches and milk in the clubhouse. Reynolds may not be the fastest man on the base paths, but he holds the record from home plate to the dinner pail.

—King Made the Call and Won the Pot

In addition to being a good Southern Association ballplayer, Reynolds is worth his salary as a morale booster. He's a tough little Irishman from the waterfront in New Orleans, with a heart as big as his mouth.

He always has a wisecrack to offer on any subject, but he isn't a wise guy. He's the guy everyone on the club kids, and he'd win a popularity poll hands down. Sometimes you wonder whether he is real, or whether he merely jumped out of a Ring Lardner book.

In spring training he doesn't look as though he'd help a class D club. But the Crackers wouldn't have won the pennant a year ago if Clyde King hadn't startled everyone by recalling Reynolds from Jacksonville in May. He drove in 63 runs and helped drive the Crackers to the flag.

"I never will forget that day they told me I was coming back to Atlanta," Reynolds said, as he wolfed a sandwich in the clubhouse. "We was in Montgomery, and Ben Geraghty . . . you know

BILLY REYONLDS CAUGHT IN SERIOUS MOOD

The Ace Looking to Season When Games Count

he was our manager at Jacksonville, he came up and asked me if I thought I could hit double-A pitching. Well, I wasn't hitting but .239 at Jacksonville, but I told him, 'Yeah.'

"Well the next day, Spec Richardson hands me a plane ticket, and it's to Atlanta. So I get off that bus and on a plane and I went to Atlanta. I was the most surprised and the happiest guy in baseball. I told Clyde he wouldn't be sorry he called me back, and I don't think he ever was."

How does he explain the fact that he's a .100 hitter and drops fly balls in spring training?

"Man, they ain't no way to explain," Reynolds replied. "I try in the spring, but it just seems different once you get started and you know the games mean something."

—He Likes the Chips When They're Down

The answer is competition. Under normal circumstances Reynolds is, at best, an average player. In the clutch, he's a terrific hitter. For example, it was Reynolds who doubled and scored the tying run, before doubling in the 15th inning to usher Memphis out of the playoffs last fall.

"Naw, that wasn't the best hit I got last year," he said. "Oh, yeah, it was the most important, but it wasn't the best one. Don't you remember that night in Mobile when I hit two home runs to win the game, 2-0?"

Reynolds' red face was even redder on a recent afternoon when he dropped two fly balls in the same game. He took a lot of ribbing in the clubhouse and around the hotel. Then, the next afternoon, Atlantan Poochie Hartsfield and some of the Wichita players presented Reynolds a "butcher's" apron.

It was suggested that a haircut might help Reynolds with his fielding. He is a barber in the clubhouse, but he is allergic to barbers with scissors. Underneath a cap which falls off his head everytime he goes for a fly ball, you'll see one of the thickest mops of hair since Samson. A year ago in an exhibition game at Jax Beach, a high wind blew the ball over Reynolds' head and hair in his eyes. He had difficulty in finding the ball.

Reynolds is a throwback to the days when ballplayers were tough, and the customers were glad of it. He just likes to play baseball and does to the best of his ability. If he wasn't playing pro ball, you'd find him on some amateur team. And he'd be bearing down every inning. He just loves the game, which may explain why the fans love Reynolds.

Georgia Tops Bama Netmen

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Ga., March 26—Georgia's tennis team successfully opened a four-game home stand Tuesday afternoon by trimming the University of Alabama, 7-2.

Lindsey Hopkins, number one of the Bulldog crew, completely outclassed Alabama's Charlton Bargeron, taking his singles match, 6-0, 6-0.

The victory brought coach Dan Magill's netmen above the .500 mark, giving them a 4-3 season record and two wins in a row. The latest victory was a 9-0 victory over the Naval Air Station at Jacksonville last Saturday.

Summary: Singles—No. 1, Lindsey Hopkins (G) def. Charlton Bargeron, 6-0, 6-0; No. 2, Jim Odom (A) def. Marvin Carpenter, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3; No. 3, Alfred Thompson (G) def. Frank Hahn, 7-5, 3-6, 7-5; No. 4, Richard Courts (G) def. John McWilliams, 6-3, 6-3; No. 5, Louis Smith (G) def. Louis Reynolds, 6-1, 6-0; No. 6, Don Hartsfield (G) def. Tom Cooper, 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles—No. 1, Hopkins-Thompson (G) def. Hahn-Odom, 7-5, 8-6; No. 2, Bargeron-McWilliams (A) def. Carpenter-Courts, 8-3, 6-2; No. 3, Smith-Hartsfield (G) def. Cooper-Reynolds, 6-1, 8-10, 6-4.

MICK'S ANKLE BETTER, TAKES LIGHT WORKOUT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26 (AP)—His sprained left ankle considerably improved, Mickey Mantle today participated in a light New York Yankees' batting drill while in civilian clothes.

The slugging center-fielder sustained a ligament sprain Sunday and yesterday was put on crutches. A night's rest apparently helped the healing progress.

Meanwhile, Mantle's spring training replacement, Tony Kubek, continued to be a topic of discussion in the Yankee camp.

"Kubek will go nine innings a day from now on," said Manager Casey Stengel. "I want to find out if he can hit left-handed pitching. He'll play at second base in addition to the outfield and shortstop."

A lefty batter, Kubek hit .331, the second highest mark in the American Assn., with Denver last season.

Montag's Bat Shines In Wichita Shelling

Braves Bombard Crackers for 7th Time, 18-2; Hurlers Nottebart and Bradberry Battered

By AL THOMY
Constitution Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 26—Bob Montag got back on the hitting beam with a double and single here Tuesday afternoon, but it was hardly enough to overcome a hit-happy Wichita team, and Atlanta's down-and-out Crackers went down to an 18-2 defeat.

The exhibition season has turned into a hitless and pitchless nightmare for the young Crackers, who cannot hope to match the power and experience of such teams as this Wichita club of the American Assn. Eight times they have clashed, and only once has Atlanta won.

Thrown in with one-sided loss to Columbus of the International League, the Crackers find they sport—if that's the right word—a 1-8 record for the exhibition season.

Even Happy Chandler and Happy Hooligan, thrown in together, could not detect an optimistic note in the field performance of the Crackers. Yet one must remember this is still a neophyte squad, being trained for lower classes. Not one to challenge the likes of battlefield-tested veterans.

Montag was the Montag of old, and the only bright note in a dismal symphony. He doubled to center in the second inning, and singled home the only two runs in the sixth. Otherwise, the only sticker of any reputation was catcher Sidney Goldfader, who stroked a long double to the center-field wall in the eighth inning.

Actually, the story of this game is the story of Wichita. This may have been the day the Kansas Braves were made. They blasted three Atlanta pitchers for 18 hits and a like number of runs, cashing in on every opportunity in this shabby bit of batting practice.

Righthander Don Nottebart, who was impressive in a snappy warmup session, was shelled from plate to post as the Braves proved one point conclusively: They'll be in the thick of the American Assn. running barring the advent of doughnuts as bats.

Shortstop Joe Koppe started the fireworks with a tremendous home run over left, as first man up in the game, and Nottebart never recovered. Ray Shearer, who had three big hits, doubled for two runs in a big four-run third. Frank DiPrima and Chick King singled for the other two.

King, incidentally, had four hits and the same number of runs batted in for the afternoon. Ed McHugh, subbing for Poochie Hartsfield, cleaned the bases for three runs with a poke over the left-field fence in the big seventh inning when the Braves scored seven.

Righthander Buck Bradberry,

Georgians To Defend Gator Title

Seventh Time Out For Lawson Men

University of Georgia's basketball team will defend its Gator Bowl championship Dec. 30-31 at Jacksonville, Fla., Coach Red Lawson disclosed Tuesday afternoon.

It will mark the seventh successive appearance for the Bulldogs in the holiday affair. Lawson's troops have won the tournament two out of six tries.

Georgia beat Clemson and South Carolina to take home the marbles in 1956. All-America and collegiate scoring king Grady Wallace had led the Gamecocks to two earlier victories over Georgia, setting the stage for a notable upset.

Florida also returns from last year's field to join the Bulldogs, but the other two teams have not been announced.

"They've always treated us mighty well down there, and we're pleased to be going back," Lawson said.

Lawson expects to continue his December rivalry with South Carolina and Mercer in addition to the Gator tournament.

Crax Get First-Sacker Thompson, Shift Montag Back to Outfield

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 26—William K. (Bill) Thompson, 25-year-old first baseman who hit .278 for Jacksonville of the Sally League in 1956, has been assigned to the Atlanta Crackers by the Wichita Braves of the American Assn.

Cracker Owner-President Earl Mann announced the switch here Tuesday night.

The acquisition of Thompson brings up the question of Bob Montag's status at first base, and Manager Buddy Bates answers that one: "Montag will go back to the outfield at the present time. We want to see what Thompson can do."

In addition to Thompson, the parent Milwaukee Braves assigned catcher Sammy Taylor, a .358 hitter for Bates at Topeka of the Western League, to the Cracker squad. And in addition to Thompson and Taylor, the contract of third baseman Morrie Lerner, a 20-year-old rookie from Brooklyn, was handed over to Atlanta.

Thompson, a left-handed hitter, has good power to right. He swatted 13 home runs for Jacksonville, and 14 for Columbia of the Sally League in '55. A converted pitcher, he stands 6-5 and weighs 190.

Thompson could well be the Cracker first baseman, and that fact was brought home forcibly by another move here Tuesday.

Buck Riddle, Cracker first sacker in '56, was shifted to the outfield by Wichita Manager Ben Geraghty.

Riddle went to the outfield on the orders of the Milwaukee brass from Bradenton.

So Thompson's stock as the Cracker first baseman has climbed . . . if he makes the grade.

BIG DON NEWCOMBE WATCHES CATCHER AND BIG ERROR

Kuenn Slugs Tigers Past Cincinnati, 8-4

Brooks Wallop Phillies, 8-3; Mueller's Homer Sinks Cubs

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, finally showing some of the punch new manager Jack Tighe has been looking for, beat Cincinnati at its own game Tuesday, clubbing 13 hits in an 8-4 victory over the Redlegs at Lakeland, Fla.

Steady Harvey Kuenn, the American League's all-star shortstop, furnished the brunt of the attack with four hits and five runs batted in. Kuenn greeted Redleg starter Russ Meyer with a first inning home run, then followed with a single and two doubles to complete a perfect 4-for-4 day at the plate.

It was the slow starting Tigers' sixth victory in 16 exhibition games and their second in succession. They started to perk up Sunday with a 15-3 walloping of Toronto of the International League.

The hard-hitting Redlegs got their runs on homers by Gus Bell and pinch hitter Curtis Flood.

Brooklyn defeated Philadelphia, 8-3, at Clearwater, the New York Giants used Don Mueller's grand slam homer in the ninth to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 7-6, at Mesa, Ariz., Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 4-0 at St. Petersubrg Fla., Washington edged Kansas City, 8-7 at Orlando, Fla., Baltimore rallied to defeat Cleveland, 7-6, at Scottdale, Ariz., and the Boston Red Sox went 10 innings to nip Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League at Los Angeles, 6-5, in other games.

The Dodgers scored seven runs on eight consecutive hits off Harvey Haddix in the third inning of their victory over the Phils. Brooklyn ace Don Newcombe pitched the first six innings and gave up all three Philadelphia runs, two of which were unearned.

Relief pitcher Turk Lown was one out away from wrapping up a 6-3 victory for the Cubs over the Giants when Mueller's grand slam homer turned it around. Another grand slam, this one by Harmon Killebrew, was the big hit in the Senators' game with Kansas City. The A's had four homers, two by ex-Yankee Bob Cerv and one each by Gus Zernial and Hal Smith.

The Pirates had eleven hits, including an inside-the-park homer by Bill Mazeroski, to back up the two-hit pitching of Dick Hall, Nelson King and Elroy Face to beat the Cardinals, and a three-run rally in the last of the ninth inning did the trick for Baltimore against Cleveland. The Indians had scored three times in the top of the inning to take the lead.

Jim Piersall's tenth inning homer won for the Red Sox, who had scored a single run in the ninth to send the game into extra innings. Marty Keough had two home runs for the American Leaguers.

Mercer Falls To Wofford

Special to The Constitution

MACON, March 26—Mercer baseball coach Claude Smith renewed his search for hitters here Tuesday afternoon after his Bears had been shackled, 4-2, by Wofford right-hander Delano Hutchinson.

Furman York, also a right-hander, fired an eight-hitter to compare favorably with Hutchinson's four-hit effort. But Mercer showed the same limited success at the plate that it had against Tennessee.

Shortstop Jim Hannah, who arrived at Mercer by way of Bass High and Piedmont College, slammed a triple to drive home the Bears' first run in the sixth inning. Catcher Melvin Kinslow, who scored ahead of Hannah's clout, contributed a double and single.

Otherwise, the Bears' hitting was practically non-existent.

BAD NEWS FOR STILT: TAR HEELS TO IMPROVE

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—North Carolina's NCAA champion basketball team will be 25 per cent better next year, according to Coach Frank McGuire.

But the New York Irishman who coaches the Tar Heels added hurriedly today that it may not do as well as this season in the won and lost records. North Carolina came through the NCAA tournament as the nation's only undefeated major college team with 32 straight victories.

McGuire, here to coach the East team in the annual Fresh Air Fund East-West all-star game Saturday, told a luncheon gathering of sports writers that the big factor in his team's overtime final victory over Kansas Saturday was the juniors on the squad retained their poise.

"We made a lot of mistakes during the overtime," he said, "but you could see them out there remembering what they had been told and trying to play it that way."

Another reason why McGuire expects a 25 per cent improved club next season is York Larese, a freshman from New York, who has "the greatest shot I've ever seen."

McGuire, reported at various times to be considering leaving North Carolina, denied that he had been approached about other jobs.

"I haven't talked to anyone since the game. I'm going back to Carolina April first. I have a lot of speaking engagements lined up."

McGuire said he thought his "rhubarb" with Kansas Coach Dick Harp had been over-emphasized.

CRACKER DIARY

Hersh Still Swinging Heavy Homer Timber

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 26—Earl Hersh stepped into the swatting cage and lifted one of Ted Wilks' nothing-ball pitches over the right-field fence.

Earl Hersh

"That would have been out in Nashville," laughed Poochie Hartsfield.

"That would have been out almost anywhere," retorted Hersh.

In the confusion at the cage, Hersh slipped back in and slapped another Wilks' special over right. The old zip was there, and it showed, even through Wilks' floaters.

Hersh, who had a good year in Atlanta during the '55 season, is being reconverted into a first baseman by the Milwaukee Braves, who figure they're amply supplied with fly chasers.

First base or outfield, it makes little difference to the former West Chester Teachers football star.

"Either position is okay with me," said Hersh as he awaited another turn in the Wichita Braves' cage.

"The one which gets me back to the majors is the one I want to play. Wherever they want me, that is where I want to play."

The acquisition of Hersh makes Buck Riddle and/or Bill Thompson available for the Atlanta Roster.

Phils Offer Haddix For Buc Shortstop

Pulled Muscle Cripples Wynn; Veal Goes to Charleston Club

From Press Dispatches

The Philadelphia Phillies reportedly have offered pitcher Harvey Haddix to the Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for Frank Thomas or Dick Groat.

The original proposal was Haddix for shortstop Groat and "somebody else to sweeten the deal." But a combination deal with Haddix and another Phillies regular—possibly third baseman Willie Jones—for both Thomas and Groat was suggested.

Pittsburgh manager Bobby Bragan expressed interest in a deal but said he couldn't see a man for man swap, Haddix for Thomas or Haddix for Groat.

The Phillies meanwhile are still searching for a shortstop and continued to negotiate with Brooklyn for Chico Frenandez.

CRACKERS

who succeeded Nottebart on the mound, held the Braves to four hits in three innings, and only eight runs. He walked everybody in the park in the seventh.

Tom Fitzgerald, a righthander who struck out 230 batters in the Class D Florida-Alabama League in '56, came on to finish up. He was charged with the final three runs, but he wasn't altogether ineffective in his debut.

Manager Ben Geraghty of Wichita, now operating the two-platoon system with two full teams on his hands, announced he will play a "double-header" Wednesday, and the first game should be one of the best seen here. It pits his first team against the second, and it will be held during the morning hours.

In the afternoon the Braves meet Charlotte of the Sally League.

There's one consolation of these woodshed beatings the Crackers have absorbed, and that's the fact these boys who're doing the clobbering now may soon wear the uniform of the Crackers. Surely, Wichita won't be able to use them all.

Buddy Bates' Crackers, jumping from the fire into the inferno, move to the old Jacksonville Ball Park Wednesday afternoon for a return engagement with Columbus' Jets, who, like Wichita's Braves, like a batting feast.

Bates is expected to call on veteran Earl Mossor to hold the line.

SMILING OLYMPIANS HIDING FROM MOBS OF WELL-WISHERS IN PRAGUE

Boston's Harold Connolly and Czechoslovakia's Olga Fikotova Wed Today

NEW EAST-WEST PACT

CZECH PRESIDENT INVITED TO OLYMPIC PAIR'S WEDDING

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—U.S. Olympic champion Harold Connolly and pretty Czech athlete Olga Fikotova today asked Czechoslovak President Antonin Zapotocky to be guest of honor at their East-West "wedding of the year" in Prague tomorrow.

Both Connolly, 26, and Miss Fikotova, 24, believe it was Zapotocky himself who cut through red tape to permit the burly Boston hammer thrower to wed Olga, the Czech discus champion he met at last year's Olympic games in Australia.

In a phone call to his mother in Boston arrange by the United Press, Connolly said today he was the "happiest man in the world" about his forthcoming marriage.

He told her not to worry about the fact that Olga is a Protestant. "I was born a Catholic, and I'm going to stay a Catholic and my children are going to be Catholics," he told his mother.

The fact that he and Olga will be married in a Protestant as well as civil and Catholic ceremonies has raised the possibility of complications with Catholic Church law.

In Washington, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Mrs. Dulles sent the couple "best personal wishes."

It was not known tonight whether the Czech president would attend the triple marriage ceremonies to be held at the city hall and in Catholic and Protestant churches fronting on the old town square in the Czech capital.

In any event it appeared certain to be Eastern Europe's biggest wedding of the year.

Nothing like it had ever happened before. Diplomats in Prague reported by telephone that the whole city was excited over the East-West romance that once didn't seem to have a chance.

Prague Mayor Adolf Svoboda will attend the ceremonies along with U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson. Czechoslovakia's foremost track star, Emil Zatopek, will be best man.

Prague police were reported making preparations for a crowd of thousands in the ancient town square.

Connolly and Miss Fikotova were in hiding today. Connolly instructed the Prague telephone exchange to refuse all calls except those from his mother in Boston.

As a result of their fame and expected crowds, it was planned that the couple will ride in automobiles from one ceremony to the next even though both churches and city hall front on the same square.

GRANT FIELD SCRIMMAGE

Jackets Face First 'Knock' Session Today

Georgia Tech's football team will hold its first spring scrimmage Wednesday afternoon at Grant Field.

Plans call for Coach Bobby Dodd's Yellow Jackets to be idle Thursday, with another scrimmage on tap for Friday. Then they will cease operations for the weekend.

Wednesday's workout probably will pit the first team against the fourth unit with the second and third brigades going against the "B-teamers."

Tuesday brought the first tackling drills for the backs and linebackers. Over-all it was considered "disappointing," but there were several outstanding individual efforts.

Two of the smallest men on the team shone the brightest. Arthur Baird and Brannon Lesesne, the little left halfbacks from Texas and Atlanta, were especially rugged.

Centers Maxie Baughan, like Capt. Don Stephenson, a native of Bessemer, Ala., and Foster Watkins of Baker were rockin' the runners from their linebacking slots.

Taz Anderson made the switch from end to halfback in great style from the standpoint of tackling, and halfbacks Tim Singleton and Cal James left little to be desired at downing the ball carriers.

James, however, sustained a pulled groin muscle and might miss the first scrimmage.

Dodd expressed pleasure with the way Anderson has taken to his backfield chores.

Tackle Urban Henry, guard John Neal Reed, the West Point transfer, and Baughan excelled in a goal line scrimmage.

During punting practice, former quarterback Bobby Hardison, who was moved to guard at his own request, blocked one kick and just missed derailing another.

Jimmy Rose, a guard from Miami, and tackle Bo Gentry of Memphis, Tenn., were standouts for the B-teamers, who spent much of the day on offense. It was a cold, mid-November type afternoon.

Holders of practice passes will be admitted to Wednesday's scrimmage which starts at 4:15.

Denson Wins Griffin Meet

Special to The Constitution

GRIFFIN, March 26—Joyce Denson, pretty little 16-year-old Atlantan, captured both the qualifying medal and championship flight in the Griffin Women's Golf Assn., invitation tournament at Griffin Golf Club Tuesday. She won the medal with a 41-41—82.

Mrs. Carl Norvell of Griffin was championship runner-up, while Mrs. Harold Denson, Joyce's mother, won consolation in the title flight.

The tournament was directed by Mrs. Tom Burdeshaw, who was recently named Griffin's Women of the Year.

Results of other flights: First—Mrs. Teddy Hayes, Atlanta, winner; Mrs. A. C. Robinson, Atlanta, runner-up; Mrs. R. I. Gunnell, Atlanta, consolation. Second Flight—Mrs. Otto Frei, Atlanta, winner; Mrs. Bill Moore, Griffin, runner-up; Mrs. Ed Broadbear, Atlanta, consolation. Third Flight—Mrs. Leary, winner; Jimmie Phillips, Atlanta, runner-up; Mrs. Bert Prather, consolation. Fourth Flight—Louise Gay, Gay, Ga., winner; Mrs. W. F. Gay, Gay, runner-up; Mrs. H. K. Singletary, Griffin, consolation. Short Flight — Mrs. C. E. Pruett, Griffin.

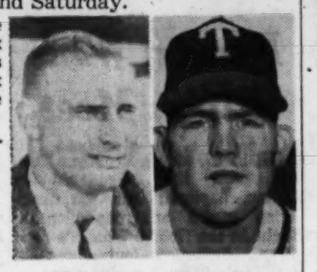
Cleats for Clouts: Menger and Barnes

Grid Stars Meet on Diamond When Tech Faces Deacs Friday

By MICKEY LOGUE

Two important members of Southern football's Who's Who will demonstrate what's what at third base this season when Wake Forest and Georgia Tech square off at Rose Bowl Field Friday and Saturday.



Bill Barnes Johnny Menger

Handling the hot corner for the Deacons is All-America fullback Bill Barnes. In Tech's corner is Johnny Menger, best utility back in the Southeastern Conference during 1956.

Both also are prominent in collegiate baseball circles.

When only a sophomore, Barnes was regular third baseman on Wake Forest's NCAA champions of 1955. He was named to the all-Atlantic Coast Conference teams the past two seasons, and is expected to repeat this spring.

Barnes batted .310 last year, but Friday's opener against Tech will be the first action for him and his teammates this season. They were rained out of Tuesday's game with Virginia Tech.

Menger, who has excelled as a catcher and infielder for Coach Joe Pittard's recent baseball editions, stroked the ball at a .382 rate during the Jackets' seven-game excursion into Florida last week.

His record includes three RBI, 12 hits, two of 'em doubles; and eight stolen bases. He is among the top contenders for the all-SEC third base job earned by Alabama's Herb Kosten in 1956.

Barnes apparently has fully recovered from a shoulder injury that hampered him during the waning stages of his football career.

Three of the pitchers who fired Wake Forest to its national crown will be available for duty against Tech. They are right-handers Buck Fichter and Jack McGinley and southpaw John Stokoe.

Among them, they posted a 17-6 chart toward the NCAA title. Their junior season—last year—saw a dip in the Deacons' diamond fortunes. And their combined record dropped to 5-4.

Gene Hooks, who's new to the Wake Forest coaching ranks but not to Wake Forest, hopes the holdovers, with the help of the newcomers, can regain the championship path they pursued as sophomores.

Lefty Stokoe has been nominated to face Tech Friday. Pittard said he will retaliate with sophomore Bud Blemker, who has fanned 19 men in 15 innings in going 1-0 so far. Tech Saturday will start Jack Jordan or Danny MacGregor, both right-handers.

Other returnees from the national titlists for Wake Forest are shortstop Harold Moore and right-fielder George Miller. Miller's .408 average placed third among the ACC's 1956 hitters.

Barnes bats left-handed and Miller right-handed for Hooks, who was an all-American third baseman in 1949-50 at Wake Forest.

Tech's best SEC baseball finish in history has been third place. The Jackets looked better than that in belting Florida three straight at Gainesville. Two games with Wake Forest should make Tech even sharper for the rugged SEC row still left to hoe.

Turner, Sulcer, Hunter Lead 'Good Hit' North Fulton Nine

Hurlers Headed By Shropshire

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

It used to be "good pitch, no hit" at North Fulton High in baseball. This year it looks like "good hit, no pitch."

That's the way Calvin Hartness laughingly explains the situation as he begins his third year as head diamond mentor. But he's quick to add that he's not sellink hurlers Don Shropshire, Jim Phillips, Ernie Smith and Harvard Huey short.

"Lefty Shropshire won the two games he pitched last season and looks good this year," he intones. "Phillips has a sore arm, but we figure he'll do well if his arm gets okay.

"Smith, who moved here from Florida a year or so ago, and Huey are promising tenth graders. It's just that we know we'll miss pitchers as good as Gene Farr and Buddy Harrell were. There weren't many better ones."

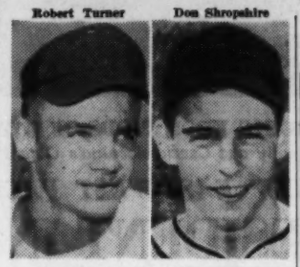
Actually, Hartness figures his 1957 club will be far better in the hitting department than North Fulton has been for several years.

He has three 1956 regulars back besides Shropshire in second baseman-outfielder Louie Sulcer, leftfielder Robert Turner and centerfielder David Hunter, although Hunter played only part time a year ago.

It is well known that Sulcer is one of the City League's most accomplished glove men and hitters. But Turner, who throws lefthanded and hits right, has been the pleasant surprise with his Mantle-like blasting in preseason skirmishes. Hunter, too, has been belting the ball hard.

Hartness lost all-star shortstop Vance Rankin, first baseman George Minhinnett—the team's leading hitter — outfielder Joe Orrechio via graduation. Bill Hardcastle, a three-year regular as a catcher, has decided his future lies in tennis and will compete in that sport.

Robert Turner Don Shropshire



Louie Sulcer David Hunter

The North Fulton mentor is punch-proud of his infield, made up completely of tenth graders if senior Sulcer plays outfield instead of second base. Mickey Wright is at first, Tommy Campbell at second, Tommy Carlock at shortstop and Woody Woodall at third base.

"The boys are going to make us a fine infield for two years, I believe," he praises. "Carlock had four hits in four trips in a practice game against O'Keefe."

Turner, Hunter, Mike Lee, Doug Mitchell and 10th graders Homer Martin and Bobby Womack are the outfielders. David Bates, second string 1956 receiver, will do the catching. If he needs relief, Martin also knows his way around with chest protector and shin guards on.

"Most of the boys came up from the B team as a unit, and we figure the club looks mighty good, especially at the plate," Hartness sums up the Bulldogs.

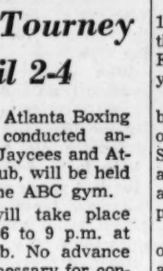
Bob Flock Parks Retirement Plan For Drive on Lakewood Records

By RALPH GREGORY

Bob Flock, who started the "Flying Flocks" racing career 20 years ago, celebrates the occasion Sunday with a record-smashing attempt.



Ralph Gregory

Oldest of the Flock brothers, Bob comes out of retirement to return to Lakewood Speedway, a track which has always been sort of a second home, and he'll have brothers Tim and Fonty lending physical as well as moral support.

And a two-year layoff from the active driving circuit hasn't dimmed his love for the roaring wheels—or confidence, either.

"I'm in pretty good shape and we're fortunate enough to have a mighty good car," he said on contemplating what the sudden return to driving would mean.

"In fact, we're so proud of the car I'm pretty sure we'll win and probably set a new track record in doing it."

The "we" is the brother team, for all will be active in Sunday's outcome.

"Fonty and Tim will both be in the pit helping out," Bob said Tuesday over the hood of the new 1957 Chevrolet that he expects to pilot home first. "They're mighty glad I'm driving again, and so am I."

It was exactly 20 years ago—in 1937—that the friendly Flock first pushed a car onto a race track. Since that time he's captured the World's Championship Roadster Race at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., driven in the Mexican Road Race and twice won the modified race at Daytona Beach."

But along the way he made enough stops at the Lakewod track to win more races there than any other driver.

In 1955 he decided to devote full time to working as mechanic for brother Tim and the Kiekhaeffer team. The combination resulted in Tim's blazing to the national championship.

The car he'll be driving Sunday, plus the "home-like" Lakewood track brought on the sudden desire to race again.

The car, built by Smokey Yunic of Daytona Beach, is a fuel injection, 283-horsepower engine model that led more than halfway at the Daytona Beach 150-mile race earlier in the year before engine trouble forced it out.

You can't call him an old man, but the voice of experience could sound a word of warning to the youngsters.

"We'll win, and probably set a new track record."

PIT STOPS—Little Joe Weatherly, NASCAR point leader in the convertible division, added to his lead at Manassas, Va., Sunday by capturing a 150-lap race for the open-tops. Glen Wood was second, Curtis Turner third. All drove Fords. . . . Buck Baker took an early lead at Hillsboro, N.C., to win a 100-mile late-model race with an average time of 83.06 miles per hour. Speedy Thompson was second and Atlantan Frank Smith third. First three drivers all piloted Chevrolets. . . . Andy Linden opened Dayton, Ohio's sprint car season with a half-length victory over Rex Easton in a 50-lap feature.

CHAMPS ARE THERE — Two former Southern 500 winners are signed for the Rebel 300 convertible race at Darlington May 11. Curtis Turner, who won the 500 last year, and Buck Baker, 1953 winner, both were officially entered this week.

POINT LEADERS—Joe Weatherly tops the NASCAR convertible point leaders with 1,264. Glen Wood is second with 1,072. . . . Marvin Panch holds the hardtop lead with 1,240 ponits with Buck Baker second at 824. Tim and Fonty Flock rank in the top 20 in each division. Tim is eleventh in the convertible rankings, Fonty 17th in the hardtops.

Giardello Seeks Eighth in Row

KANSAS CITY, March 26 (AP). Joe Giardello, No. 2-ranked middleweight, will tangle with Willie Vaughn, 160-pounder from Los Angeles, in Municipal Auditorium here Wednesday night. The 10-round bout will be televised nationally (ABC, 10 p.m. EST).

Golf for All

Hammers Swinging On Jones Club House

By Bert Prather

That hammering you hear around Bobby Jones Golf Club these days isn't some disgruntled golfer breaking up his clubs even though it is coming from the battered old locker room.

Bert Prather

At long last, the city has started remodeling the BJ clubhouse, and when completed it will again be one of the better municipal golf buildings in these parts.

The project is being done at a cost of $35,277. We are sure all publinx swingers who play this fine 18-hole layout will get extra enjoyment out of their golf in the future.

Maybe this "new look" program had something to do with it. Anyway Bobby Jones regular Dr. W. R. Mason Jr., knocked in his first eagle in five years on the par five No. 7 the other day. Doc got home with a drive, three iron and eight iron on the uphill 481-yard toughie.

His playing companion was C. W. Hicks. Doc had a 45 on the nine, not one of his best efforts.

CHIP SHOTS: Dr. Bill Warren's 74 last Saturday was one of the best rounds he's been able to notch at Peachtree GC in some time. However, this is not an unusual accurance since Bill's a four handicapper. . . . Good rounds at Capital City over the weekend: Jungle Jim Clay, the club champ, and John B. (Sonny) Ellis, 69s; John W. Owens, 70s. . . . Bill Simmons, new golf chairman at Griffin GC, and pro W. D. (Doc) Tumlin have booked a one-day tournament for April 14. . . . Bobby Jones GC sparmates Abe Massar, Emmett Wilson, Ed Ferrier and George Sprague are sharpening up their games for the big Druid Hills Dogwood April 11-14. . . . Tom Clift, veteran board of education employe treated himself to a sparkling 32 at Pete Cole's Piedmont course recently.

Look for a big turnout for Thursday's pro-amateur at East Lake. Golf chairman Rube Gunnell has added the trimmings again. . . . Jimmy Colquitt and Marietta CC friends of Johnny Carson have made sure he'll be eligible to participate in all future tournaments. John's a MCC member now and will not have to pass up the Southern as he did last year because he was not a member of a SGA member club. . . . Rome's Coosa Club will be represented in the DH Dogwood by Burgett Mooney, Jennings Gordon, Merrell Ewing, Dr. Ralden Dellinger, Gene McGee. George Horton, Jack (Pistol) Knight Jr., and Jack Knight Sr. . . . Teddy Hayes, James L. Key Club pro, made a birdie four on No. 9 the other day to save his "investment." The catch was he had to do it playing left-handed.

And Mrs. Teddy Hayes, not to be outdone, shot a 93 to take low gross in Mid-Georgia Assn., play at Fort Mac the other day and Tuesday captured first flight honors in Griffin GC one-day event. Lt. Alice Hampson and Mrs. Lester Lingle were other winners in MGWGA. . . . Peggy (Mrs. Herman) Dixson and her Druid Hills WGA will kickoff the season with a two-day medal play tourney Thursday and Friday. . . . Jimmy Demaret's fine showing on the PGA winter tour has a lot of his boosters tagging him as the man to watch in next week's Masters.

Masters eligibles Dow Finsterwald and Arnold Palmer stopped off en route to Wilmington (N.C.) Azalea Open and gave Augusta National a whirl Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Dow had 72, 70, 72 and Arnold 70, 74, 70. Veteran Lloyd Mangrum signed the Masters register Tuesday along with Australia champ Bruce Crampton and Oklahoma City amateur Charlie Coe. Ben Hogan is expected to arrive Wednesday. The Masters foreign list now includes Gary Player and Trevor Wilkes of South Africa; Crampton and Peter Thomson, Australia; Henry Cotten, Harry Weetman, England; Moe Norman, Al Balding, Stan Leonard and Jerry Magee of Canada.

DUCKWORTH EYES RECORD

Jackets, Bulldogs Limping for Relays

By BERT PRATHER

Injuries and the flu bug have taken their toll in the track camps of Georgia and Georgia Tech.

The situation is so critical at Georgia that coach Spec Towns will take only four field men to Saturday's University of Florida Relays—three javelin thrusters and a high jumper.

Denny Jackson, Towns' ace sprinter pulled a muscle running through a jumping pit and that wrecked the Bulldog sprint medley relay team. And as a clincher, Cliff Simonton, star 880 man, took down with the flu.

The freshmen relay was stalled when ace 880 and miler Ken Winn was declared ineligible.

So, Georgia's traveling squad, which will leave Friday for Gainesville, will consist of Bill Duckworth, the great javelinist, fellow thrusters Len Spadafino and Eddie Spear and high jumper Sonny Poss.

For Duckworth, it will be his first competition since an elbow operation last year. Towns says Bill has been throwing 218 in practice, which is approximately five feet better than the Florida Relays record made by LSU's Joe May last year. Bill's almost a cinch to bring back a gold medal.

Meanwhile Coach Norris Dean has been having his troubles. Bob Dewhurst, his best distance man, has flunked out of school, Coles Bryant, another distance man, has a knee injury and star sprinter Martin Torrance is just recovering from the flu.

Torrance, however, will join Charlie Powell, Stan Flowers and John Fortune to compose Tech's sprint medley relay team Saturday. Fred Berman and Bob Allison will go in the javelin and high jump and Jack Keene in the pole vault and javelin. Dean also will take a freshman relay team.

Tucker Sparked By Mansfield

Tucker High tuned up for its Friday Fifth District Class-B baseball opener by spanking invading Roswell, 10-4, at Tucker Tuesday.

Eddie Frazier, Marvin Hudson and Buddy Barrett limited previously unbeaten Roswell to four hits. Kelly Mansfield belted three hits in four trips, Gary Moon two in four for the winners.

Frazier allowed no hits in his three-inning stint. Ninth-grader Hudson allowed one in two frames and Barrett three in the final two.

Roswell .....100 003 0— 4 4 3
Tucker .....520 003 x—10 9 2
Martin, Blackwell (6) and Burger; Frazier, Hudson (4), Barrett (6) and Ross.

Ft. Mac Wins Third Army Bowling Title

Fort McPherson's men's bowling team flattened 9,584 pins to win the 1957 Third Army championship at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Fort Benning's team came in second with 9,491.

Fort Bragg, N.C., nudged Fort McPherson's women's team out of first place, but the Ft. Mac girls sewed up singles, doubles and all-events championships.

Cpl. Sarah K. Turner posted a singles high of 536 and was all-events titlist with 1,486. She also teamed with M/Sgt. Alma Hanover to pocket the doubles crown on a 917-pin showing.

CWO G. Rayhill and SFC G. Hammond mowed down 2,234 pins to stash away the men's doubles for Ft. McPherson.

Individual totals for Ft. Mac's triumphant men's team included: Rayhill, 1,705; Maj. E. McDermott, 1,610; SFC G. Labarnes, 1,605; SFC Hammond, 1,570; Lt.-Col. D. Jellum, 1,566, and Capt. F. Kluge, 1,528.

Boylston Halts Avondale, 6-4

Bobby Boylston southpawed a two-hitter as Druid Hills High nipped Avondale, 6-4, in a baseball game at Scottdale Tuesday.

Rodger Miller rapped two singles, Fritz Flack and Harry Clark one each to account for all Druid Hills' blows off Sam Taylor and Julius French. Ralph Adams had a single and Jimmy Bruce a double for Avondale.

FROM GROWER HOUSES TO PROCESSING PLANTS, GEORGIA IS BULGING WITH BROILERS—PRODUCTION LAST YEAR AVERAGED 610,356 EVERY DAY

Observers Estimate That 1957 Could Top Last Year's Record Production of 222,780,000 by as Much as 50,000,000 in Georgia Alone, Unless a Hoped-for Voluntary Industrywide Cutback Materializes This Summer

Georgia's Industry Output Up 90 Pct. Since War II

State's Potential Being Developed Much Faster Than That of Nation

By BOB WILLIMON

Georgia industrial production—despite a comparatively lagging chemicals devolpment and declines in the textile industry—has increased an average of more than 90 per cent since World War II in nine major areas.

And the increase, compared to a nationwide rise in these areas of 37 per cent, indicates that Georgia's industrial potential is being developed at a rate almost two-and-a-half times faster than that of the country as a whole.

These are the indications of a Census Bureau-based report issued by Merrill C. Lofton, Atlanta field manager of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce. The report covers the years 1947-54.

Although the post-war Georgia advance in value of all goods produced coincided with the national rise of 57 per cent, the state's output of paper and allied goods increased 178 per cent compared to a 57 per cent nationwide rise. The value rise was from $88.5 million to $101 million.

The other eight industries figuring in the increase were:

Lumber and wood products, up 14 per cent in Georgia compared to a 72 per cent decline in the nation, a state output value increase from $22.7 million to $33.5 million; furniture and fixtures, up 47 per cent compared to 46 per cent, a value rise from $22.7 million to $33.5 million;

Food and kindred products, up 99 per cent compared to 48 per cent, a Georgia value increase from $133.4 million to $265 million; apparel and related products, up 57 per cent compared to 16 per cent, a value rise from $76.2 million to $118.5 million;

Printing and publishing, 75 per cent compared to 47 per cent, up from $32.6 million to $56.9 million; stone, clay and glass, 67 per cent compared to 66 per cent, up from $26.7 million to $44.6 million; primary metals, 88 per cent compared to 63 per cent, up from $7.8 million to $14.6 million; fabricated metals, 97 per cent compared to 54 per cent, up from $14.9 million to $29.4 million.

A less bright facet of the Georgia industrial was pointed out, however, as Lofton reported a 5 per cent gain in the state's chemical and chemical products industry compared to a nationwide 77 per cent advance.

And the output value of the state's No. 1 industry, textile production, reflected a general regionwide decline by dropping 4 per cent, or from $398 million to $382 million.

FINANCIAL VIEWS

Stock Lingo Made Easy With Booklet

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK, March 26 — Listen to the fellow taper tick talk. He must be an old vet trader. Just listen:

"I'm doing a bit of diversifying of my portfolio, selecting only the stocks with a good technical position. Also doing a bit of dollar cost averaging, and some selling against the box.

"That selling against the box is just like a short sale—have to wait for an uptick or a zero-plus tick. But I don't do the waiting. Just leave it to the broker—discretionary order.

"There's a thin market for a lot of stocks just now. Doesn't take much buying or selling to send them up or down sharply. I like to stay with the blue chips—also dabble a bit in growth stock."

Well sir, that lingo isn't only for taper tick. You, too, can get a load of it.

Just get yourself a copy of the latest stock exchange booklet, "The Language of Investing—A Glossary." That explains everything from "accrued interest" to "yield." And it's free.

You can get it from the New York Stock Exchange or from a member firm of the exchange.

Share ownership is increasing at an average annual rate of a half million investors and they want to know more about the language of investing, said Keith Funston, Exchange president, in announcing the new booklet.

Broiler Industry Shuns Federal Controls

By JIM MONTGOMERY
Constitution Business Editor

GAINESVILLE, March 26—The long-established chicken producer fairly leaped out of his chair. A furious look swept over his anger-reddened face.

"Government controls?

"Heaven forbid!" he bellowed. "Anything but that! I'd rather go broke!"

Though somewhat more explosive than the responses of other poultrymen here, his attitude reflects the virtually unanimous sentiment of broiler industry people in this area toward any hint of federal interference in their production problems.

Jim Montgomery

But, because the question is more pertinent than ever before, their concern runs deep.

PROFITS CUT DEEP

For some 15 months now, over-production has been holding market prices below production costs and exacting a heavy toll from the profits of this massive nationwide industry.

And because Georgia is far and away the largest broiler producing state in the nation—a position it has held by an increasing margin for six straight years—it has felt the impact of declining prices more than any other state.

But a maverick trade group in second-ranked Texas, which last year produced less than half as many as the 222,780,000 broilers grown in Georgia, started last month on a tub-thumping campaign to get federal production controls.

No one in Gainesville, however, will admit favoring this approach. On the contrary, poultrymen in this nerve center of U.S. broiler output vehemently reject any such proposal.

WANT NO 'HELP'

Though admittedly concerned over the production problem, industry leaders here are confident they can iron out their own troubles "with no 'help' from the government, thank you."

And their optimism over the long-range future of Georgia's poultry industry seems boundless.

Meanwhile, some look for the market to firm up by June. Others are engaged in projects aimed at correcting the present decline as well as preventing lengthy future recurrences.

Still others believe certain segments of the industry could speed up an adjustment if they tried.

Gordon Sawyer, who represents the National Broiler Council in the Southeast, thinks the market adjustment may be about six months overdue because of a factor introduced early last year that is just now disappearing.

He suggests that feed dealers, who hold the key to production, inasmuch as they control broiler raising through contracts with growers, would have cut production some time ago had not the insurance industry offered a plan to protect their income.

This is the second article in a four-part Constitution series spotlighting Georgia's 130-million-dollar poultry industry and its hub—Gainesville.

It started last May. Generally, the premium cost dealers 1 to 1½ cents a pound on their operation. The insurance was designed to hold losses to a minimum during periods of falling prices.

Since many dealers bought such policies, Sawyer reasons, the industry lost one of its important incentives to make an early adjustment to over-production.

Meanwhile, saddled with millions of dollars in losses (some estimate the total at $13 million), insurance companies started pulling out in September—giving notice that contracts would not be renewed when they expired early this year.

Another view is taken by Hall County Commissioner Ralph Pope, who now operates a small loan company. Five years ago he pulled out of the broiler industry after 10 years as a feed dealer because he had no control (price-wise) over any part of his business.

"The feed mills," Pope declares, "could make the poultry business profitable in three months—by restricting credit."

He believes the mills—especially nationwide outfits like Purina, Allied and General Mills—could simply tell growers now raising, say 10,000 broilers, that on the next go-around they'll furnish feed (actually sold to dealers) for only 7,500 broilers.

DEALER RESPONSIBILITY

Others feel it's the responsibility of dealers not to accept all the credit extended by the mills, which are primarily interested in increasing their tonnage.

Pope, realizing that each mill is afraid of losing business to its competitors if it should curtail credit, added, "I'm afraid over-production will stop only when the inefficient producers are forced out of business."

Perhaps the best hope for the industry now is "Operation Bootstrap," a long-range program sponsored by the National Broiler Council which calls initially for voluntary production curbs throughout the 22 major broiler producing states.

More important in the long run, the council has statisticians ferreting out data that will for the first time provide regular and accurate industry outlook information—on which it is earnestly hoped producers throughout the nation will act accordingly.

If they do, and if the information proves reliable, the over-production problem will be licked.

SALES PROMOTION

Another important aspect of "Operation Bootstrap" covers sales promotion, public relations activities and service efforts aimed at food retailers—both chains and independents.

Some poultrymen think their troubles stem from the long-established practice of food stores selling broilers at "loss-leader" prices—meaning that retailers sell below their actual cost (on just one or two items) to compete for customers.

Ironically, however, they're proud and encouraged by the fact that grocers feel broilers are more attractive to shoppers than hundreds of other foods—especially competitive meats.

Lawyers Okay Procedure on Fairbanks Morse

Dow Jones News Service

NEW YORK, March 26—The annual stockholders meeting of Fairbanks Morse & Co. probably will be convened tomorrow as scheduled but the outcome of the battle for control may not become known for a long time.

That, in distilled form, is the result of the first day of hearings on the suit filed last week by Fairbanks Morse management for an injunction to bar Penn-Texas Corp. from voting its Fairbanks stock at the annual meeting.

After conferences with lawyers District Judge Joseph Sam Perry announced attorneys for the two sides had reached a "tentative agreement" on procedural matters.

Drugs, Gas Stations Lead in Sales Gains

Retail sales in the 16-state "broad" South during January were $315 million above those of January 1956.

Sharing in the advance in terms of millions of dollars were food stores, up 38 to 602; eating and drinking establishments, up 5 to 210; general merchandise, up 4 to 190; apparel, up 28 to 166; furniture and appliances, up 9 to 172; service stations, up 34 to 321, and drug stores, up 16 to 115.

Only lumber, building materials and hardware stores held the January 1956, level of $191 million,

Steel-Led Rally Puzzles Experts

Slim Climb Reverses Slump And Packs Volume Slightly

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—Steels paced a stock market rally today, reversing an early decline and bringing about a slight rise in volume.

Key stocks showed gains of fractions to a point or more. There was a wide assortment of losers in about the same range, however.

Most leading oil issues were well on the upside. Motors were mostly firm. Some selected issues made gains running to around 2 points. But rails and utilities were narrowly mixed.

It was a slim advance at best and it was based principally on a brisk rally around midsession which came as a pleasant but rather puzzling surprise to the financial community.

NOTHING OBVIOUS

To the question, "what caused it?" there was no pat answer, certainly nothing obvious in the news. Wall Streeters ascribed it to technical market conditions. Among these were a record of dwindling volume on movements to the downside and an increasing short position which would act as a "cushion" to any tendency toward a sharp retreat.

The market was declining at the start despite bullish earnings, sales and production reports from certain steel companies. Investors looked at the declining rate of output for the steel industry as a whole, they looked at the new drop in Chicago steel scrap prices and at the soft copper prices. There was no enthusiasm.

The rally came suddenly and without warning. Within an hour it was over and the market was just as sluggish as it was before.

ANACONDA SLIPS

Among the most heavily traded stocks, Anaconda was down 1¼ for the widest movement on the most-active list. Symington-Gould made a rare visit to the list of market leaders, up ½. Chrysler was up ¾.

Texas Co. was up ⅞ in actve trading to another new high. Royal Dutch hit a new high with a gain of ½.

Douglas Aircraft dropped 1⅛, United Aircraft 1⅜, Ford ⅝ and Air Reduction 1.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Hedging Dips Near Cotton

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—Cotton futures closed irregular today. Final prices were 15 cents a bale lower to 85 cents higher.

Nearby contracts were depressed by profit-taking and hedging, while demand for distant deliveries was spurred by large sales of government surplus cotton for export.

The Agriculture department announced it sold 582,160 bales of government-owned cotton to shippers for export against bids submitted on March 19. The cotton must be exported from the United States by Aug. 15 or shippers will be forced to pay a cash penalty.

Purchases in the cotton futures market were credited to New Orleans dealers, exporters, textile mills and commission houses. Offers were supplied by hedges and profit-taking.

Wheat Rises Despite Snow

CHICAGO, March 26 (AP)—Wheat futures rallied to close as much as a cent a bushel higher on the Board of Trade today. Other grains and soybeans generally continued the advance of the previous session.

Export news was one bullish influence in the rally in wheat. Profit-taking cut into the best gains in all pits.

Wheat closed ½ to 1 cent higher, corn unchanged to ⅝ higher, oats ½ to ⅞ higher, rye unchanged to ½ up, soybeans 1¼ higher to ¼ lower, and lard unchanged to 5 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Clear weather returned to the Southwestern winter wheat belt after the heavy weekend snowfall, but some additional light snow is forecast for Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Traders have been trying to assess the amount of benefit the winter wheat crop in the Plains states received from the blizzard. Western portions of the belt were particularly dry and in need of moisture.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—Business in cotton gray goods was dull Tuesday. Small lot bookings were reported for nearby delivery. Prices remained unchanged, although it was indicated that some shading was possible in the second-hand division on the popular 80 square print cloth.

Volume of sales in woolen and worsted goods remained slow. Representatives stated that the lack of business at present is mostly a seasonal development. Bookings of lightweight cloth have already been completed and dealers are awaiting increased interest in fall and winter lines.

A slight pick-up in spun rayon business was reported. Sales took place for spot and second-quarter delivery.

"FLYING ANTS" MAY BE TERMITES

Surety-Bonded TERMITE CONTROL

$100,000,000 worth of building damage every year can be laid at the doorstep of wood-destroying termites! Now, of course, those hordes of swarming creatures at your doorstep could be flying ants. But chances are they're termites . . . and only an expert can really tell. So if you're smart, if you want your home to be really safe, call the world's leading termite expert, Otto the Orkin Man.
